INTRODUCTION.

Summary of Charters, Royal Letters, and Acts of Parliament.

A D. $159\frac{1}{2}$. § I. The University of Dublin was founded by Queen Elizabeth, A. D. 1591. On the third day of March in that year, a College[a] was incorporated by Charter or Letters Patent, as "the Mother of an University"[b], under the style and title of "The College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, near Dublin, founded by Queen Elizabeth." The object of the foundation of the Society is stated in the Charter to be "for the education, training, and instruction of youths and students, ... that they may be the better assisted in the study of the liberal arts, and in the cultivation of virtue and religion"[c]. Since that period several Royal Charters have been granted by succeeding sovereigns, and Acts of Parliament have been passed, extending the privileges of the University, and making such alterations in the statutes and constitution of Trinity College as were from time to time deemed necessary. A brief summary of these Charters, Royal Letters, and Acts of Parliament, is here subjoined.

§ II. In the Charter of Foundation of Trinity College (34 Eliz.), the Queen nominated one Provost, three Fellows, in the name of more, and three Scholars, in the name of

[a] The constitution of the University of Dublin, and its relation to Trinity College, are discussed with remarkable clearness and ability, in a paper laid before the University Senate, at its meeting on June 24, 1871, by the Right Hon. Sir Joseph Napier, Bart., Vice-Chancellor of the University. It is remarkable that the title given to the University in the Fourth Article of the Treaty of Union between Great Britain and Ireland, A.D. 1800, is "The University of Trinity College."

[b] "Unum Collegium mater Universitatis . . . pro educatione, institutione et instructione juvenum et studentium in artibus et facultatibus, perpetuis futuris temporibus duraturum, et quod erit et vocabitur Collegium Sanctæ et Individuæ Trinitatis, juxta Dublin, a serenissimâ Reginâ Elizabethâ fundatum."—Charta Reg. Eliz. anno regni tricesimo quarto.

A.D. 159½. more, to constitute with their successors for ever a Body corporate and politic, under the name of the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin, with the following privileges:

1. That upon every vacancy of the Provostship, the Fellows, and their successors, or the majority of them, be empowered to elect another fit Provost within three months after the occurrence of such vacancy; and in like manner, on the vacancy of any Fellowship or Scholarship, the Provost and remaining Fellows, or the majority of them, shall elect such persons as they shall consider duly qualified, into the vacant Fellowships or Scholarships, within two months after the vacancy.

2. That the Provost and Fellows may have a common seal for transacting the business of the Corporation, and that it may be lawful for them from time to time to make, constitute, and confirm such laws, statutes, and ordinances, as to them may seem necessary for the government of their College; and that whatever laws of either of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge they may judge to be apt and suitable, they shall establish among themselves; and especially that no other person should teach or profess the liberal arts in Ireland without the Queen's special license.

3. That Students be admitted, in due course (juxta tempus idoneum), to the Degrees of Bachelor, Master, and Doctor, in all Arts and Faculties; but that the Fellows of the College, when they shall have completed the term of seven years after the degree of M.A., shall be removed from their Fellowships, and others co-opted in their room.

4. That the Provost and Fellows, or the majority of them, shall be empowered to appoint the acts and scholastic exercises to be performed for Degrees in each Faculty, and to elect the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor,[a] Proctors, and other University officers, necessary for the more solemn conferring of such Degrees.

5. That all the Queen's subjects and officers be permitted and encouraged to grant to the College such assistance as they may be disposed to give; and that all goods, chattels, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, belonging to the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of the said College be for ever exempted from all burdens, taxes, tallages, cesses, subsidies, exactions, compositions, or demands whatsoever, as well in time of war as of peace.

[a] In the Register called "The Particular Book," which is one of the oldest records of the College, the following entry appears in the handwriting of Provost Temple, with regard to the Election of a Vice-Chancellor:—

Fol. 187. "Memorand.—That, March 2, 1614, Doct. Ussher was chosen Vice-Chancellor by the Provost and Fellows, and the next day he was confirmed and approved touching this choice by the whole Senate of the University.

"W. TEMPLE, Prov."

This Charter also nominated seven Visitors, viz., the Chancellor of the University, or his Vice-Chancellor; the Archbishop of Dublin; the Bishop of Meath; the Vice-Treasurer; the Treasurer at War; the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas in Ireland; and the Lord Mayor of Dublin; all for the time being, to constitute a court before whom, or a majority of them, all strifes, actions, and controversies, which the Provost and Fellows may be unable to settle, shall be heard, and who shall punish all "graviora delicta" which the Provost and Fellows may have left unpunished. A.D. 159½.

§ III. King James I., in the eleventh year of his reign, issued Letters Patent, enumerating the privileges granted to Trinity College by the Charter of Elizabeth, and reciting, "that whereas the said College was, and was esteemed, an University, and had, enjoyed, and possessed, all and singular, the rights, liberties, and immunities pertaining to an University," [a] therefore the King granted to the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars, the privilege of electing two Burgesses from among themselves, to represent the University in Parliament, as at Oxford and Cambridge[b]. A.D. 1613

§ IV. The Charter granted by Charles I. (13 Car. I.) confirmed the privileges and powers given by the Charter of Elizabeth to the Corporation of Trinity College, repealing, with the consent of the Provost and Fellows, such parts of the original Charter as were found by experience to have operated to the discouragement of learning, and to have impaired the efficacy of the Institution as a seminary of education. The following are the new provisions that were thus introduced into the constitution of the College, and which, with some exceptions, have continued in force to the present day: A.D. 1637.

1. The clause which limited the duration of Fellowships, having been found to be injurious, "not only to the Students and the College, but also to the general interests of the kingdom and the Church," is repealed, and Fellowships are made tenable for life.

2. The power of making statutes for themselves is taken

[a] "Cumque dictum Collegium sit et habeatur Universitas, ac habeat, gaudeat, et utatur omnibus et singulis libertatibus, privilegiis, et immunitatibus ad Universitatem sive Academiam pertinentibus sive spectantibus. . . . . . idcirco operæ pretium et necessarium videtur, quod dictum Collegium et Universitas habeant plenam et absolutam potestatem duos Burgenses de seipsis eligendi, eosque mittendi ad supremam curiam Parliamenti."—Charta Regis Jacobi I.

[b] The words of the Charter express distinctly the King's design of assimilating the University in this respect to Oxford and Cambridge. "In quâ quidemcuriâ (scil. Parliamenti) Burgenses sic electi et missi, juxta formam Universitatis Oxoniensis et Cantabrigiensis in Anglia usitatam, notum faciant verum statum dicti Collegii ac Universitatis ibidem." It may be added, that the privilege of returning Members to Parliament was first granted to the English Universities by the same monarch at the commencement of his reign. The Act of Union gave "The University of Trinity College" the right of sending one Member to the Imperial Parliament: but the right of sending two Members was restored to the University by the Irish Reform Act, 2 &3 Wm. IV., cap. 88.

A.D. 1637. from the Provost and Fellows, and reserved to the Crown. The book of Statutes which they had framed by the powers formerly lodged in them was abrogated; with this exception, that the increase made in the number of Fellows, from three to sixteen, and in the number of Scholars, from three to seventy, as also the distinction of the Fellows into seven Senior, and nine Junior, Fellows, is approved of and confirmed. The whole government of the College is committed to the Provost and Senior Fellows, as in the former statutes; the place of an absent Senior Fellow being supplied by the Junior Fellow next in order of seniority. Among the powers entrusted to them, it is expressly stated that they shall determine and settle all matters relating to the conferring of Degrees in the University.[a]

3. The Statute-book, having been revised, and such alterations made in it as were deemed necessary, was imposed on the College by Royal authority; reserving to the Crown the power of changing, repealing, or dispensing with, any statutes or clauses of statutes that may at any time be found inconvenient or injurious to the College. But power is given to the Provost and Senior Fellows to make new rules and decrees in cases not decided in the statutes, which decrees have the force of statutes, provided they be not repugnant to the statutes given by the King, and provided also, that they shall receive the consent of the Visitors; and all such decrees continue in force until they are repealed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with consent of the Visitors.

4. The power of electing their own Provost was taken from the Fellows and reserved to the Crown: the vacancy of the Provostship to be signified immediately by the Vice-Provost (or, in his absence, by the Senior of the Fellows then in residence) to the Chancellor of the University, and by the Chancellor to the King; but during the vacancy to the Provostship no elections can be made, nor can leases or other instruments requiring the College seal be signed.

5. Upon the vacancy of a Senior Fellowship, the place must be filled up within three days after any such vacancy is known[b]; and upon the vacancy of a Junior Fellowship or Scholarship, successors are to be elected on the Monday after the Trinity Sunday next following the vacancy. The electors are the Provost and Senior Fellows, or the majority of them; and in case of an equal division, the election is made according to the vote of the Provost. A.D. 1637.

[a] "Volumus igitur ut Præpositus et horum seniorum pars major (nempe quatuor) Collegii regimen, electiones omnes Sociorum, Officiariorum, Discipulorum et ministrorum Collegii, graduumque collationes definiant et concludant."—Stat. Caroli I., cap. iv.

[b] If this vacancy should occur during the vacations, the election and cooptation may be deferred until such time as the Provost and at least an equal part of the Senior Fellows, "suo jure seniorum," shall be present; such delay in no case, however, to exceed three days from the commencement of the next ensuing Term.—Stat. 28 Vict.

6. The election of University officers, the Chancellor, Proctors, &c., was continued in the Provost and Senior Fellows, as in the former Charter; but the Vice-Chancellor is appointed by the Chancellor, and all officers of the University so elected must declare upon their oath[a] that they will faithfully discharge the duties prescribed to them. This oath is taken by the Chancellor before the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper of England, or before the Lord Chancellor of Ireland; by the Vice-Chancellor, before the Chancellor of the University, or in his absence before the Lord Chancellor of Ireland; and by the Proctors and other officers of the University, before the Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor.

7. The Visitors were diminished in number from seven to two, viz., the Chancellor of the University (or in his absence, the Vice-Chancellor) and the Archbishop of Dublin.

§ V. Since the date of the Charter and Statutes of Chas. I., the number of Junior Fellowships has been considerably increased. In the year 1698 one Fellowship was founded out A.D. 1698. of lands bequeathed to the College by Dr. John Richardson, Bishop of Ardagh, who had been himself a Fellow about the year 1600; and William III., by Letters Patent, in the tenth year of his reign, granted the corporate rights of a Fellow to this foundation. In the year 1724 (10 Geo. I.) three A.D. 1724. Fellowships were founded out of the funds at the disposal of the governors of the schools founded by Erasmus Smith, Esq., for that and other purposes. In 1761 (1 Geo. III.) A.D. 1761. two Fellowships were founded by Letters Patent, out of the increased revenues of the College. In 1808 (48 Geo. III.) Letters Patent were passed for three Fellowships, to be A.D. 1808. endowed out of the revenues of the College. In 1840 (3 Vict.) Letters Patent were passed for the addition of ten A.D. 1840. Fellows to the existing number, by the election of one new Fellow in that year, and in each of the next succeeding nine years, the endowment for whom was to be provided out of the general revenues of the College.

§ VI. The Statutes of Charles I. underwent various changes, from the year 1637 to the end of the nineteenth century, in order to adapt them to the growing requirements of the Institution. By the operation of new Statutes, Royal Charters and Acts of Parliament, new Professorships and other offices were founded, the privileges of those already in existence were enlarged, and their salaries augmented. A list of the University Professors and Lecturers, with the dates of the foundation of their offices, is given in the University Calendar.

[a] This was the state of the law anterior to the Act 31 & 32 Vict. c. 72, which abolished promissory oaths (with certain exceptions), and substituted declarations in lieu of them. The Senior and Junior Proctors and the Registrar of the University now make a declaration before the Vice-Chancellor at the winter commencements of each year.

An Act of Parliament was passed for establishing a School of Physic in Ireland, and regulating the appointment of Medical Professors in the University in 1785 (25 Geo. III.); and subsequent legislative enactments were made on the same subject in 1800 (40 Geo. III., c. 84) and 1867 (31 Victoria, c. 9). In consequence of the growing importance of Surgery as a branch of Medical Education, Letters Patent were granted by the Crown in the year 1868, raising the newly created Professorship of Surgery to the rank of a Regius Professorship. Many other alterations have been made from time to time in almost all departments of University studies.

The School of Engineering was organized by a Decree of the Provost and Senior Fellows, June 26, 1841. Diplomas in Engineering were granted to Students who passed through the School. The conditions under which Licenses in Engineering are granted by the University were specified in a Decree of the Board and Senate, July 18, 1860, and modified subsequently by statutes of June 22, 1872, and June 29, 1878. The Degree of Master of Engineering was instituted by the Decree of July 18, 1860, and the Degree of Bachelor of Engineering by the statute of June 22, 1872.

A.D. 1851. § VII. In the year 1851 a Royal Commission under the Great Seal was appointed to inquire into the state, discipline, studies, and revenues of the University of Dublin and of Trinity College. In the Report of the Commissioners, which was laid before Parliament in the year 1853, they recommended, amongst other matters, that the Royal Statutes should undergo a complete revision. This recommendation was carried into effect by Letters Patent, dated Jan. 31, 1855; and various alterations in the Statutes were, at the same time, introduced, of which the following are the principal:— A.D. 1855.

1. Power to found new Professorships in the College and University was confirmed to the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors.

2. The limitation which the Caroline Statutes had imposed, relative to the time and subjects of the Examination of Candidates for Scholarships and Fellowships was repealed; and the Board was empowered, with the consent of the Visitors, to fix the time and subjects of these Examinations in future.

3. Certain offices which before were confined to Fellows of Trinity College were thrown open to other members of the University.

4. The Statutes relating to the University Library were altered and amended. A.D. 1855.

§ VIII. In the year 1858, Letters Patent were issued under the Great Seal, by which some important changes were made. The preamble of these Letters Patent recites that—"The Provost and Senior Fellows have, of their own free will and accord, proposed to give up the fees belonging to certain offices in the College tenable only by Senior Fellows, thereby diminishing considerably the incomes of the said offices; and also to give up that portion of the fees on Degrees which, by the ancient custom and usage of the University, had been heretofore appropriated and paid to the Provost and Senior Fellows; and have proposed to transfer the income taken from the said offices, and the amount of the said fees, to the general funds of the College, on condition that the same shall be employed for the advancement of learning and education." A.D. 1858.

The following are the new provisions introduced by these Letters Patent:—

1. Fourteen Studentships are founded, at a salary not exceeding £100 per annum for each, tenable for a period not exceeding seven years, and open to candidates of all religious denominations. Power is given to the Provost and Senior Fellows to make rules and regulations for the examination and election of Candidates, and to vary them from time to time. No Fellow is to be elected to a Studentship; and in case any person holding a Studentship shall be elected to a Fellowship, such Studentship shall thereupon become vacant.

2. In the event of two Senior Tutorships being created, to be endowed out of the College funds, it is provided that the two Senior of the Non-Tutor Fellowships created by the Royal Statute of 1840 shall become Tutor Fellowships; and power is given to the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, in the event of a Non-Tutor Fellowship becoming vacant, to omit to fill up or elect to it, until by such means the remaining four Non-Tutor Fellowships shall be abolished.

3. The Provost and Senior Fellows are empowered to adopt such rules and regulations with regard to the distribution of the Tutorial Fees as shall be agreed upon by three-fourths of the Fellows entitled to the same; and, with the like consent, to alter them from time to time, provided that all such rules and regulations shall receive the sanction of the Visitors.

4. No Fellowship falling vacant in any year between the first day of Lent and Trinity Monday (both days inclusive) shall be filled up in that year.

5. The power of nominating the Professors of Modern

A.D. 1858. Languages is given up by the Crown, and transferred to the Provost and Senior Fellows.

6. Provision is made for calling up a Junior Fellow to supply the Provost's place as an Examiner at the Fellowship and Scholarship Examinations, in case of the unavoidable or necessary absence of the Provost.[a]

§ IX. In the year 1793 an "Act for the relief of his Majesty's Roman Catholic subjects in Ireland" was passed, which decreed that (33 Geo. III. c. 21, sect. 13) "from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, it shall not be necessary for any person upon taking any of the degrees usually conferred by the University of Dublin, to make or subscribe any declaration, or to take any oath, save the oaths of allegiance and abjuration.

In the following year, 1794, Letters Patent (34 Geo. III.) were issued under the Great Seal, which enacted that Roman Catholics can enter Trinity College and take the degrees of the University.

A.D. 1873. Previous to the year 1873, the Provostship, Fellowships, and Foundation Scholarships of Trinity College could only be held by Members of the Church of Ireland. This restriction was sanctioned by Parliamentary enactments in the case of the Provostship and Fellowships (33 Geo. III. cap. 21). With regard to the Foundation Scholarships, the limitation arose solely from certain provisions in the College Statutes. All these restrictions were removed by the Act 36 Victoria, chapter 21. The preamble to this Act recites that it is expedient "that the benefits of Trinity College, and the University of Dublin, and of the schools in the said University, as places of religion and learning, should be rendered freely accessible to the nation," and that all restrictions, tests, and disabilities should be removed. The second and third sections of this Act are as follows:—

2. In the construction of this Act—the word "office" shall not, so long as the University of Dublin shall continue to teach and to grant Degrees in the Faculty of Theology, apply to any Professor of, or Lecturer in, Divinity; but, save as aforesaid, the word shall include every Professorship, Assistant or Deputy Professorship, Public Readership, Prelectorship, Lectureship, Assistant Lectureship, Provostship, Fellowship, Studentship, Tutorship, Scholarship, and Exhibition, and also any office or emolument not in this Section specified, the income of which is payable out of the revenues or income of the said University or College, or any of the schools therein, or which is held and enjoyed by any member of the same. A.D. 1873.

[a] By a later Statute, power is given to the Provost and Senior Fellows "to appoint and select such and so many Examiners as shall to them seem fit to take part in the Examination for Fellowships and Scholarships; provided always, that such Examiners be selected from among the Fellows or Professors."—Stat. 28 Vict. A. D. 1865.

3. From and after the passing of this Act no person shall be required, upon exercising, or to enable him to exercise, any of the rights and privileges which may heretofore have been or may hereafter be exercised by Students or Graduates in the said University, or upon taking or holding, or to enable him to take or hold, any office in the said University or College as aforesaid, or upon teaching, or to enable him to teach within the said University or College, to subscribe to any Article or formulary of faith, or to make any declaration or take any oath respecting his religious belief or profession, or to conform to any form of public worship, or to do any act in connexion with any form of public worship, or to belong to any specified Church, sect, or denomination ; nor shall any person be compelled in the said University or College to attend the public worship of any Church, sect, or denomination to which he does not belong ; and no person elected to a Fellowship or any other office shall be deprived of his office by reason that he is not or does not become ordained in Holy Orders.

§ X. The SENATE, or public CONGREGATION of the University, consisting of the Chancellor, Doctors in the several Faculties, and Masters of Arts, was constituted shortly after the foundation of the University, in virtue of the powers given to the Provost and Fellows of Trinity College in the Charter. Its meetings were held for the notification or confirmation of the elections of the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, and other University officers[a], as well as for the public conferring of Degrees ; and its proceedings were regulated by certain rules or statutes, entitled, "Consuetudines seu Regulæ Universitatis Dubliniensis, pro solenniore graduum collatione," which were originally drawn up about the year 1615[b], and appear to have been reduced into their present form shortly after the Restoration. These rules having become in many respects obsolete, and unsuited to the state of the University, the Crown, at the request of the Chancellor of the University and the Provost and Senior Fellows of Trinity College, granted Letters Patent, dated July 24, 1857, of which the following is a summary. A.D. 1857.

[a] In the "Particular Book," the following entry appears in the handwriting of Provost Temple with regard to one of the meetings of the University Senate:—

Fol. 188: "Memorand. That Aug. 27, 1612, the Provost and Fellowes being assembled together about the choise of a Chancellor, did upon mature deliberãcon, and for some speciall and worthy regarde them moving thereunto, nominate, elect, and constitute for their Chancellor the right honorable and most reverend Father in God the L. Archbishop of Canterb. that now is; And the day following this choise of ye sayd L. Arch. was published and notifyed in a solemne congregation of Regents and non Regents called to that end and purpose.—W. TEMPLE, Prov."—See note to p. 2.

[b] The University Statutes, in their original form, were drawn up by Sir William Temple, when Provost, and the first eleven chapters are in his handwriting. The concluding paragraph of chapter xvii. is in the handwriting of Provost Bedell. These Statutes appear to have been revised and amended by Dr. Jeremy Taylor, Bishop of Down and Connor, when Vice-Chancellor of the University.

A.D. 1857. The first clause of these Letters Patent "confirms to the Provost and Senior Fellows of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity aforesaid, and unto the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, Doctors, and Masters of the said University, all such powers, rights, and privileges as, by the Charters and Statutes of our Royal Predecessors, to the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars, or to the University of Dublin aforesaid, have heretofore been given, granted, or by usage and prescription possessed, without any alteration or diminution whatsoever, save as herein provided." The following enactments are then made with respect to the University Senate :—

1. Power is given to the Provost and Senior Fellows to alter, amend, and repeal all laws, rules, or by-laws heretofore existing, and to make new rules and laws from time to time for the more solemn conferring of Degrees by the Senate of the University ; provided always that no such new laws, or alteration of existing laws, shall be of force or binding upon the University, until they shall have received the sanction of the Senate or Congregation lawfully assembled.

2. No law, rule, by-law, or grace whatsoever, for the conferring of Degrees, or any other purpose, shall be proposed to the Senate, which has not been first proposed to and adopted by the Provost and Senior Fellows. The Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor presiding is empowered to prohibit any such law or grace from being proposed to the Senate.

3. The Vice-Chancellor, if unable to attend any of the meetings of the Senate, is empowered, by writing under his hand and seal, to appoint a Pro-Vice-Chancellor for that special occasion.

4. The Senate of the University shall consist of the Chancellor, or, in his absence, of the Vice-Chancellor, or Pro-Vice-Chancellor for the time being, and such Doctors or Masters of the University as shall have and keep their names on the books of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, in accordance with such regulations as the Provost and Senior Fellows shall enact.

5. The Caput of the Senate shall consist of the Chancellor, or Vice-Chancellor, or Pro-Vice-Chancellor, the Provost, or, in his absence, the Vice-Provost, and the Senior Master non-regent, who is elected by the Senate.

6. The Senate shall be convened only by the Chancellor, or, in his absence, the Vice-Chancellor or Pro-Vice-Chancellor, each of whom, when presiding, shall have power to adjourn or dissolve its meetings, and shall have a casting vote. The Chancellor, or, in his absence, the Vice-Chancellor, or Pro-Vice-Chancellor, shall be bound to convene the Senate, on a requisition presented by the Provost and Senior Fellows; and the Senate shall meet at such time, and for such purpose, as shall be stated in such requisition. A.D. 1857.

7. The Provost and Senior Fellows relinquish the absolute power given to them by the Charter of Charles I., of electing the Chancellor of the University; and hereafter, whensoever the office of Chancellor becomes vacant, the Provost and Senior Fellows shall, within one calendar month, propose to the Senate the names of three persons, from amongst whom the Senate are to elect a Chancellor within one month from the day of such proposal. In computing these periods, the interval between the 1st of July and 1st of October shall not be taken into account, nor shall an election take place during such interval. If the Senate decline or omit to elect, the nomination of the Chancellor is reserved to the Crown. The Vice-Chancellor shall continue to hold his office during the vacancy of the office of Chancellor, and shall, during such vacancy, have power to convene the Senate for the purpose of electing a Chancellor, and shall have authority to exercise all the functions and duties of the Chancellor, until the election of the Chancellor.

8. The Senate of the University shall be, and continue to be, a body corporate, and have a common seal, and shall have power under the said seal to do all such acts as may be lawful for them to do (in conformity with the laws and statutes of the realm, and with the Charter and statutes of Trinity College, and with the statutes, laws, and by-laws of the University), under the name, style, and title of the Chancellor, Doctors, and Masters of the University of Dublin.

9. It shall be lawful for the Chancellor, Doctors, and Masters to apply the funds, which may or shall belong to the University Senate, for the promotion of useful learning in the University, subject to such regulations as the Provost and Senior Fellows shall approve or prescribe.

10. It shall be lawful for the Chancellor, Doctors, and Masters of the University, in their corporate capacity, to have, hold, acquire, and receive such lands, manors, tenements, and other property, real or personal, as may, from the date of these presents, be given or bequeathed unto them by any person whatsoever, for the encouragement of learning in the University, provided that such gift or bequest does not impose any condition or obligation inconsistent with the statutes of the University in force at the time of such gift or bequest, or inconsistent with the Charters or statutes of Trinity College.

§ XI. In the year 1874, Letters Patent were issued by the Crown, altering and repealing certain clauses of the Statutes, and ordering that a Council should be elected for the purpose of co-operating in the regulation of the Studies, Lectures, and Examinations in Trinity College and in the A.D. 1874.

A.D. 1874. appointment and regulation of the tenure of office and duties of Professors. The portion of these Letters constituting the Council is as follows:—

It is therefore our will and pleasure that a Council be constituted, nominated, and elected, which shall consist of the following Members:—

The Provost of our said College, or, in his absence, the Vice-Provost:

Four Members to be elected by the Senior Fellows of our said College out of the Members of the Senate of the said University, as constituted and incorporated under and by virtue of our Royal Charter or Letters Patent, given and granted in the 21st year of our reign:

Four Members to be elected out of the said Senate by the Junior Fellows:

Four Members to be elected out of the said Senate by the Professors who are not Fellows:

And Four Members to be elected out of the said Senate, by those Members of the said Senate who have not voted nor been entitled to vote at the last election of any existing Member or Members of the said Council, either as Senior Fellows, as Junior Fellows, or as Professors.

The Registrar of the said College shall, under the direction of the Chancellor or, in his absence, of the Vice-Chancellor of the said University, prepare and publish lists of the Electors in each Class, one month before the day appointed for the nomination of Candidates at each annual Election of Members of the said Council, and no person shall be entitled to vote at such Election, unless his name appears on one of the lists so published, or unless he shows to the satisfaction of the Chancellor or, in his absence, of the Vice-Chancellor, that his name ought of right to have been inserted in one of these lists.

At every election of Members of the Council, every elector of each class shall be entitled to a number of votes equal to the number of persons to be elected to the Council at such election of that class, and may give all such votes to any one Candidate, or may distribute them among the Candidates as he thinks fit.

The Chancellor, or, in his absence, the Vice-Chancellor of our said University, is hereby authorized to frame rules and regulations for the first Election of Members for the Council, in conformity with the provisions of these our Letters Patent, provided always that such rules and regulations shall be approved by the Senate of our said University, and shall be promulgated at least one month before the day fixed for such Election.

The several Members so elected as aforesaid shall vacate office in the following rotation:—

The Members elected by the Senior Fellows shall vacate office at the end of the first year; those elected by the Junior Fellows, at the end of the second year; those elected by the Professors, at the end of the third year; and those elected by the Members of the Senate, who had not voted as Fellows or Professors, at the end of the fourth year.

The same course of electing to and vacating office shall be pursued from time to time in each period of four years. A.D. 1874

Save and except in the case of Members constituting the first Council, each Member shall continue in office for four years.

Each outgoing Member of the Council for the time being shall be eligible for re-election.

The election of Members for the said first Council shall be completed on a day not later than the 31st day of December, 1874.

The election of Members in the place of those who shall vacate office in rotation, shall be completed on a day not later than the first day of December in each year.

Any casual vacancy occurring by death, resignation, or otherwise, among the Members of the Council shall be filled up by the election of a qualified person according to the provisions hereinbefore contained, upon a day not later than twenty-one days, nor sooner than seven days after such occurrence shall have been notified to the Provost, or, in his absence, to the Vice-Provost, the respective times for the nomination and election to be fixed by the Provost, or by the Vice-Provost, and publicly notified by him. If such vacancy shall occur during a vacation, the occurrence shall be deemed for the purpose of such notices to have taken place on the first day of the ensuing Term.

The person to be elected upon the occurrence of any such casual vacancy shall vacate office at the same time when the other Members elected by the same class of electors shall retire in rotation as aforesaid.

The Provost and Senior Fellows, and Council, shall have power jointly, from time to time, to alter, amend, and repeal any laws, rules, and regulations concerning the times and manner of voting for and electing Members of the Council, in conformity with the provisions of these our Letters Patent, and from time to time to make additional or new laws, rules, and regulations, for the same purpose, and to alter or vary the same, or any of them, as to the said Provost and Senior Fellows, and Council, jointly, shall seem fit; provided always, that no such additional or new laws, rules, and regulations, repeal of laws, rules, and regulations, emendations, alterations, or variations, shall have any force or efficacy until they shall have received the sanction of the Senate of the University in congregation lawfully assembled.

The Provost, or, in his absence, the Vice-Provost, shall have the power of summoning meetings of the said Council, and shall do so at fixed times to be determined by the Council, and also on special occasions, on the requisition, in writing, of any five Members of the same; and shall preside at every meeting of the said Council. The mode of summoning meetings of the Council shall be from time to time prescribed by the Council. Nine Members, including the President, shall form a quorum.

And it is our further will and pleasure that the Council shall nominate to all Professorships, except those the nomination to which is vested in some other body or persons by Act of Parliament, or by the directions of private founders, and except also the following Professorships in the School of Divinity; that is to say, the Regius Professorship of Divinity, Archbishop King's

A.D. 1874. Lectureship in Divinity; and the Professorship of Biblical Greek. Such nomination shall be subject to the approval of the Provost and Senior Fellows. In the event of the said Provost and Senior Fellows refusing their approval to the nomination of the Council, the Chancellor shall decide whether the grounds for such refusal are sufficient. If they shall appear to him to be insufficient, he shall declare the person nominated by the Council to be duly elected. If not, the Council shall proceed to a fresh nomination. If no election shall take place within the space of six calendar months from the date of the vacancy, or from the time of the creation of any new Professorship, the right of nomination and election for the purpose of filling up such vacancy, or of appointing to such new Professorship, shall lapse to the Chancellor. No person, being at the time a Member of the Council, shall be nominated by the Council to any Professorship.

And it is our further will and pleasure that, except so far as is otherwise provided by Act of Parliament, or by direction of private founders, any proposed new rules or regulations respecting Studies, Lectures, and Examinations, save and except any Studies, Lectures, or Examinations, in relation to or connected with the School of Divinity (with which the said Council shall not have authority to interfere), and also any proposed new rules or regulations respecting the qualifications, duties, and tenure of office of any Professor in any Professorship now existing, or hereafter to be constituted, except the Professors and Professorships connected with the said School of Divinity, and any proposed alterations in any existing rules or regulations respecting such Studies, Lectures, and Examinations, qualifications, duties, and tenure of office, save as aforesaid, shall require the approval both of the Provost and Senior Fellows and of the Council.

That all such new rules or regulations and alterations in any rules or regulations may be originated either by the Provost and Senior Fellows, or by the Council.

And that no new Professorship shall be created or founded by the Provost and Senior Fellows without the consent of the Council.

A.D. 1880. In the year 1880, Letters Patent (43 Vict., April 27th, 1880) were issued which:—

1. Provided for the retirement of Fellows and of the Provost.

2. Prescribed that one Fellow and no more be elected each year.

3. Re-enacted a repealed clause respecting the payment of Junior Fellows called up to the Board as deputies for absent Senior Fellows.

4. Opened the Regius Professorship of Divinity to others than Fellows.

5. Enacted that the Visitors of the College shall be the Chancellor (or in his absence the Vice-Chancellor) of the University, and the Lord Chief Justice of Ireland for the time being.

In the year 1889, Letters Patent (52 Vict., May 20, 1889) were issued which:— A.D. 1889.

1. Fixed the term and tenure of Scholarship.

2. Reduced the number of Studentships from fourteen to ten, and altered the tenure from seven years to five. Also empowered the Provost and Senior Fellows to decline to elect to a Studentship or to award one of reduced value in case of insufficient merit on the part of the candidates: and in case of equality or closeness of answering between the candidates to divide the emoluments of a Studentship.

3. Gave the Provost and Senior Fellows power to use the money saved in any year by the reductions in the number and tenure of Studentships, or diminutions of the amounts expended on Studentships, for the purpose of providing Prizes to be awarded to deserving students at the Degree Examination of the same year.

4. Gave the Provost and Senior Fellows power to declare a Studentship vacant, if the holder were guilty of any grave offence against law or morality.

5. Prescribed:—That the Provost and Senior Fellows, if they are not satisfied that sufficient merit has been shown by the candidate or candidates for any Prize or Prizes, shall have power to withhold the Prize or Prizes; and prescribed that this rule shall apply to all Scholarships, Exhibitions, or other Prizes of private foundation with respect to which the respective Founders have not or may not have expressly declared a contrary intention. Provided always that the seventy Foundation Scholarships shall be filled up to their full number on the Monday following Trinity Sunday in each year.

In the year 1904, Letters Patent were issued which gave authority and power to interpret the Statutes of the College in such a manner that women may obtain Degrees in the University, all previous laws, ordinances, and interpretations notwithstanding. A.D. 1904.

Graduates in Honors at the B. A. Degree Examination.

MEDALS GIVEN AT COMMENCEMENTS.

By a Decree of the Board, dated 30th November, 1793, it was resolved, That a Gold Medal be given to every Student who shall have answered every Examination from his entrance to the taking of his Bachelor's Degree, and at each Examination shall have got judgments not inferior to one Bene with Valde Bene.[a]

In April, 1815, this mode of giving Medals was abolished, and Gold Medals given, one to the best answerer in Science, and another to the best answerer in Classics, at an Examination held in distinct Courses prescribed for that purpose.

The regulations which passed the Board in June, 1833, substituted for the Classical and Science Medals, Moderatorships, with Gold and Silver Medals, in Mathematics and Physics; in Classics; in Logics, Ethics, and Political Economy. In 1850, Moderatorships in Experimental Physics were instituted; and in 1856, Moderatorships in History, Political Science, and English Literature.

In 1857, the title of the Moderatorship in Experimental Physics was altered into "Moderatorship in Experimental and Natural Science."

In 1871, two Moderatorships, one in Experimental Science, the other in Natural Science, were substituted for the single Moderatorship in Experimental and Natural Science.

In 1873, Moderatorships in Modern Literature were instituted, and the Moderatorship in History, Political Science, and English Literature, was changed into a Moderatorship in History and Political Science.

The following list contains the names of all Students who have obtained Medals at Commencements, under the Regulations formerly established in the University. Those whose names are marked thus [*] have since been Fellows:—

MODERATORS AND RESPONDENTS AT THE B.A. DEGREE EXAMINATION.

At the B.A. Degree Examination the First Class consists of three Grades, viz., Senior Moderators, Junior Moderators, and Respondents.

The Rules respecting the Examination for Moderatorships were passed by the Board in the year 1834, and have since been modified from time to time, as occasion required. The Respondents were added to the First Class in the year 1846.

Any Student who is qualified by having kept the requisite number of Terms may offer himself as a Candidate at the Examination for Moderatorships, without appearing at the general Degree Examination.

Moderatorships may be obtained in each of the following departments, viz.: I. Mathematics and Mathematical Physics; II. Classics; III. Ethics and Logics; IV. Experimental Science; V. Natural Science; VI. History and Political Science; VII. Modern Literature; VIII. Legal and Political Science; the rank of each department being in the order in which they are here enumerated.

The Moderators in each department are placed in the order of relative merit[a]; and all who obtain the rank of Moderator or Respondent are placed at the head of their class, and presented to the Vice-Chancellor by the Senior Lecturer, at the Commencements, in the order of their places, and of their respective departments.

The Senior Moderators in each department receive Gold Medals, and the Junior Moderators Silver Medals. Since 1867 a large Gold Medal has been given to the first Senior Moderator in each department, if he has been specially recommended by the Examiners.

Prizes are also awarded to the Moderators in order of merit.

Medallists at the Degree Examination who have dropped a Class or Classes are termed Supplemental Medallists.

The Respondents are entitled to receive Honorary Testimoniums, which are publicly presented to them by the Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor at the Commencements, when they are admitted to their Degrees.

NOTE.

The private Grace of the House was granted by the Provost and Senior Fellows for the following Honorary Degrees, and in most cases Diplomas were issued attesting that fact. It was customary to describe the granting of such a Diploma as a "conferring of the Degree by Diploma," and in times past the Provost and Senior Fellows frequently availed themselves of this mode of complimenting the influential friends of the University or of recognising scientific or literary merit. To complete the conferring of the Degree, those persons for whom the private Grace of the House had been passed, should attend at a Commencement and have the Degree publicly conferred on them by the Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor. The Grace of the Senate as well as the private Grace of the Provost and Senior Fellows, was granted in the case of any Degrees referred to below subsequent to the year 1870.

MATHEMATICAL, PHYSICAL, AND NATURAL SCIENCE.

ERASMUS SMITH'S PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS.

THE Professorship of Mathematics was founded by the Board of Erasmus Smith in 1762, and placed under regulations similar to those which prevailed in the case of the Professorships of Oratory and History, and of Natural and Experimental Philosophy (see below); subject, however, to such alterations as the Provost and Senior Fellows should from time to time think proper to make, with the consent and approbation of the Board of Erasmus Smith.

On November 23, 1835, it was Decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, that the Professorship of Mathematics should be re-established, upon the same conditions, and with the same emoluments, as were arranged for the Professorship of Natural Philosophy by a Decree dated December 17, 1831. (See Erasmus Smith's Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy.)

On March 19, 1870, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, that in the case of all future Professors of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, the salary of £700 then payable to each of the said Professors should cease and determine, and that in lieu thereof the Professor of Natural Philosophy should receive a fixed annual salary of £200, and the Professor of Mathematics should receive such yearly sum as should, together with the salary payable to him by the Governors of Erasmus Smith's Schools, make up the annual salary of £200, and that each of the said Professors should also receive such sum as he would receive out of the Tutors' common fund, according to his standing among the Fellows, if he had continued to be a Tutor. This latter sum, in the case of each of the said Professors of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, to be paid to him by the Bursar out of the general Funds of the College, and not out of the Tutorial Fund.

LORD DONEGAL'S LECTURER IN MATHEMATICS.

This Lectureship was founded about the year 1660, by Arthur Earl of Donegal, with a salary of £10 a year. After the death of that nobleman, the right of electing to the office devolved on the Provost and Senior Fellows. In the year 1675 they appear to have first exercised this right, and to have then united this foundation to the public Professorship of Mathematics, which had been founded in the University, in the year 1652, by "the Commissioner of the Parliament of the Commonwealth of England, for the affairs of Ireland," and which continued to be held by Dr. Miles Sumner (the person then nominated to it by the usurping Government), after the Restoration. This Lectureship is now held by the Assistant to Erasmus Smith's Professor of Mathematics.

UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR OF NATURAL PHILOSOPHY.

On December 18, 1847, the Professorship of Natural Philosophy was separated from Erasmus Smith's Lectureship in Natural and Experimental Philosophy, and constituted into a distinct office, to be held by a Junior Fellow on the same conditions as those previously laid down in the Decree of the Board, dated December 17, 1831, with respect to Erasmus Smith's Professorship of Natural and Experimental Philosophy.

On March 19, 1870, a Decree was enacted by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, with regard to the salaries of the Professors of Mathematics and of Natural Philosophy, which will be found under the head "Erasmus Smith's Professor of Mathematics."

ASSISTANT TO THE PROFESSOR OF NATURAL PHILOSOPHY.

In the Decree of the Provost and Senior Fellows, dated June 26, 1841, which established the School of Engineering, the Assistant to the Professor of Natural Philosophy was named as one of the five Lecturers appointed to conduct the business of the School. Owing to the increase in the number of Engineering Students, and the additional duties in consequence imposed on the Assistant to the Professor of Mathematics and the Assistant to the Professor of Natural Philosophy, the Annual Salary of each Lecturer was increased by a Decree, dated November 12, 1864, to £70; but such augmentation was to cease and determine at the end of the September quarter of 1868, unless the Provost and Senior Fellows should otherwise ordain.

ROYAL ASTRONOMER OF IRELAND ON THE FOUNDATION OF DR. FRANCIS ANDREWS.

Dr. Francis Andrews, Provost of Trinity College (who died in the year 1774), bequeathed to the College the sum of £3000 to be expended in erecting and furnishing an Observatory, and the necessary buildings for making Astronomical Observations, in such places as the Provost and Senior Fellows should judge most proper; and also the annual sum of £250 for ever, to be applied in paying the salaries of such Professor of Astronomy, and of such person skilful in taking Astronomical Observations, and such other persons as the Provost and Senior Fellows should appoint.

The Observatory being built and furnished on this endowment, and an additional sum of several thousand pounds advanced by the College for the more perfect execution of the testator's good purposes, a license of mortmain was obtained in 1791, together with a Statute for regulating the duties of the Professor.

By this Statute it is enacted that there shall be for ever hereafter a Professor of Astronomy, to be called and known by the name of the Royal Astronomer of Ireland, on the foundation of Dr. Andrews: and that the said Professorship, and the conduct of the Professor therein, be placed under the following regulations:—

1. That the Professor shall make the Observatory his actual place of residence, and shall not absent himself from it for more than sixty-two days, either together, or at intervals, in the year, without leave obtained from the Provost, or, in his absence, from the Vice-Provost, and Senior Fellows of the College.
2. That no person shall be admitted into the chambers in which the astronomical or other instruments shall be kept, unless introduced and attended by the Professor or his Assistant.
3. That the Professor and his Assistant shall not be both absent from the Observatory at the same time; and that the Assistant shall be subject to the directions of the Professor, in his attendance in the Observatory, assisting him in making observations, or making observations himself, making calculations, writing and transcribing as his secretary, moving the instruments about, cleaning and adjusting them, and any other services relative to the Observatory; and in order to secure his obedience and respect to the Professor, that he, the said Professor, shall recommend to the said Provost and Senior Fellows such Assistant as he, the said Professor, shall from time to time think proper, and that the person so recommended by him shall be by them appointed his Assistant, and shall also, at the desire of the said Professor, be dismissed.
4. That the said Professor, with the help of his Assistant, shall make regular observations of the heavenly bodies, and record them in the order of time, in bound books prepared for the purpose; and also, that in the event of any future discoveries or improvements being made in the construction of astronomical instruments, or the making of observations, the Professor for the time being shall conform himself to such regulations as shall from time to time be made by the Provost, or, in his absence, by the Vice-Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, touching all such new matters as shall arise in consequence of such discoveries or improvements.

5. That a fair copy of the observations made every year shall be presented to the College, within six months after the year shall be elapsed; and also, that the observations shall be printed every year at the expense of the College, the Professor supervising the press, and copies to be sent as presents to the principal observatories, academies, libraries, and eminently learned persons both at home and abroad; and that the remaining copies be sold, and the profit given to the Professor for his care and trouble in supervising the printing of the observations; and also that, to authenticate the observations, the Professor shall sign his name at full length at the bottom of every page; and also, that the original books of observations and computations made upon them shall not be removed from the Observatory without the express orders of the Provost, or, in his absence, of the Vice-Provost, and Senior Fellows, but shall remain there as records of Astronomy, to be consulted at proper times by persons authorized by them or by the Professor; and also, that duplicates of the said books and observations, authenticated as aforesaid, shall be handed over by the said Professor to the Librarian of the said College, and shall be by him from time to time deposited in the manuscript-room of the College Library.

6. That the said Professor shall instruct in the practice of Astronomy, and in the use of the instruments, such Fellow of the College as he shall from time to time be directed by the Provost and Senior Fellows so to instruct.

7. That the Provost and Senior Fellows shall visit the Observatory once in every year, viz., on some day in the months of June or July, and shall examine the state of the building, and of the instruments belonging to the Observatory.

8. And as often as the said Professorship shall become vacant by death, deprivation, or surrender, the Provost and Senior Fellows shall, within six calendar months from such vacancy, elect a proper and fit person to be Professor; and if the said Provost and Senior Fellows shall fail to elect a successor within six calendar months, that in every such case the election and appointment of the said Professor shall devolve on the Chancellor of the University for the time being, and that in every such case the person elected and appointed by the said Chancellor to the said Professorship shall hold and enjoy the same, to all intents and purposes, and shall be deemed and taken to be the Royal Astronomer of Ireland on the foundation of Dr. Francis Andrews, as if he had been elected by the said Provost and Senior Fellows.

On November 20, 1831, it was decreed by the Board, that the stipend granted for the support of the Professorship of Astronomy, including the pay of Assistant and of Gardener, should be raised to the amount of £700 per annum; the Professor engaging to lecture twice a week during the whole of Michaelmas Term, and to take no private pupils.

On 30th May, 1874, it was decreed by the Board, with the consent of the Visitors, that the salary of £90 a year heretofore paid by the Professor to his Assistant, should be increased by an annual sum not exceeding £110, to be paid out of the College funds, so long as the Assistant should perform his duties to the satisfaction of the Provost and Senior Fellows.

ERASMUS SMITH'S PROFESSOR OF NATURAL AND EXPERIMENTAL PHILOSOPHY.

The Professorship of Natural and Experimental Philosophy was founded in the year 1724, along with a Professorship of Oratory and History, in pursuance of an Act of Parliament "For further Application of the Rents and Profits of the Lands and Tenements formerly given by Erasmus Smith, Esq., deceased, for Charitable Uses." The following extracts from this Act contain the principal regulations relative to the elections of these Professors:—

1. That from and after the first day of May, 1724, there be founded and continued for ever in the College two public lectures, that is to say, one of Oratory and History, and the other of Natural and Experimental Philosophy; and the Provost and Senior Fellows are hereby empowered and required, on or before the said first day of May, to examine all such members of the said College as shall stand Candidates for the said Lectures in the said College, at such times and in such places as the said Provost and Senior Fellows shall think fit; three weeks' previous notice, in writing, being first given and affixed on the gates of the said College.

6. 7. That every Professor appointed as aforesaid who was a Fellow at the time of his election, or who obtained a Fellowship after his appointment, shall be allowed to hold his Lectureship or Professorship for such time, and no longer, after the resignation of his Fellowship, as shall appear to the Provost and Senior Fellows to be expedient for enabling them to provide that the Lectures may be continued, provided always, that this period shall in no case exceed six calendar months: and that the Provost and Fellows do notify to the Treasurer of the said Board the time when any Professor appointed by said Board doth resign or remove from his Fellowship.[b]

On December 17, 1831, the following regulations were made by the Board, with regard to the Professorship of Natural and Experimental Philosophy:—

That in case of the appointment of a Junior Fellow to the Professorship of Natural Philosophy, there shall be added to the endowment by the Board of Erasmus Smith, out of the Decrements, so much as may be requisite to raise the Professor's yearly income to the amount of seven hundred pounds, on the following express conditions:—

---

[a] See Act, 10 George I.

[b] Order of the Board of Erasmus Smith, Jan. 28, 1743, and Jan. 19, 1807.

1. He shall vacate the Professorship on ceasing to be a Junior Fellow.
2. He shall cease to be a Tutor; and shall relinquish all further claim to pupils, and every place or appointment incident to a Junior Fellowship, save and except the office of Junior Proctor, and any yearly office to which he may have been already appointed by the Board.
3. When the Board shall be enabled to avail themselves of his services at Fellowship Examinations, he shall hold himself bound to obey their mandate to that effect, under a penalty not exceeding one-fourth part of his yearly stipend, as above stated; in bar of which, no excuse on the ground of sickness, or any other whatsoever, shall be allowed. The above forfeiture to be incurred only in case the part assigned to him be connected with the subject of his Professorial duties.
4. That if the Professor of Natural Philosophy shall engage in, or continue in, any occupation, in or out of the College, which the Board shall pronounce to be incompatible with the proper discharge of his duty as Professor, the Board shall have the power of withdrawing from him the part of his salary as Professor payable to him by the College.

By a Decree of the Board, dated December 18, 1847 (see above, "Professorship of Natural Philosophy"), the Professorship of Natural Philosophy was separated from Erasmus Smith's Lectureship in Natural and Experimental Philosophy, and the salary of Erasmus Smith's Professor was reduced to the sum fixed by the original Parliamentary foundation.

On December 6, 1856, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, That when Erasmus Smith's Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy is chosen from among the Tutors, he shall receive, from the funds of the College, such yearly sum as shall, together with the salary payable to him by the Governors of Erasmus Smith's Schools, make up the yearly sum of £200; and likewise such portion of the Tuition Fees as he would receive, according to his standing among the Fellows, if he had continued to be a Tutor, upon the following conditions:—

1. He shall vacate the Professorship on ceasing to be a Junior Fellow.

2. He shall not hold the office of Tutor, or any place or appointment incident to a Junior Fellowship, except the office of Junior Proctor.

3. His duties as Professor shall be defined from time to time, by the Provost and Senior Fellows: and he shall be liable to deprivation for wilful neglect of the same.

4. In case of sickness, or any other unavoidable impediment to the proper discharge of his duties, the Board shall have the power of appointing a Deputy, and of transferring to him the above-named fixed salary, either in whole or in part, while such impediment exists.

5. If he shall engage in any occupation in or out of College, which the Provost and Senior Fellows shall pronounce to be incompatible with the proper discharge of his duties as Professor, and shall not immediately abandon the same when required by them to do so, he shall be liable to deprivation.

In December, 1899, it was deemed advisable to make additional provision for the teaching of Electrical Engineering in the University, and as the duties of the Erasmus Smith's Professor of Experimental Philosophy were thereby considerably increased, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, on January 13, 1900, that Professor Fitzgerald's salary should be increased from £200 per annum to £300 during his tenure of the office.

PROFESSOR OF GEOLOGY AND MINERALOGY.

On December 30, 1843, it was decreed by the Board—That a Professorship of Geology be founded, to be tenable for five years, with a power of re-election by the Board.

On December 6, 1856, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, that when the Professor of Geology is chosen from among the Tutors, he shall receive from the funds of the College the yearly salary of £200, together with such portion of the Tuition fees as he would receive, according to his standing among the Fellows, if he had continued to be a Tutor, upon the conditions stated before for Erasmus Smith's Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy under the same date.

The Professor is required to deliver a Course of at least twelve Lectures, in each of the three Terms of every year.

On April 22, 1845, it was decreed by the Board—That a Professorship of Mineralogy be established, with a salary of £100 per annum.

On May 14, 1881, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, and with the approval of the Council—That if any person, not a Fellow of the College, shall hereafter be elected to the Professorship of Geology, he shall hold the Professorship on the following conditions :—

1. His duties shall be defined from time to time by the Provost and Senior Fellows and the Council; and he shall be liable to deprivation for the wilful neglect of the same.

2. He shall hold the Professorship for seven years from the date of his election to the office, but shall be eligible for re-election.

It was at the same time decreed that on the next avoidance of the Professorship of Mineralogy, it should be united with the Professorship of Geology, and that the then Professor of Geology should become ipso facto Professor of Geology and Mineralogy:

And it was further decreed that the said Professor of Geology and Mineralogy, elected for a period of seven years, as aforesaid, should receive a fixed salary of £500 per annum, to be paid out of the College funds.

UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR OF CHEMISTRY.

In the year 1710 the first mention is made in the College Register of Lectures in Chemistry.

In 1785 an Act was passed (25th George III.) which converted the University Lectureship in Chemistry into a Professorship.

On October 17, 1874, by a Decree of the Board and Visitors, the salary of the Professor of Chemistry was raised from £250 per annum to £400 per annum; and it was enacted—

That the duties of the Professor shall be determined from time to time by the Provost and Senior Fellows; and that he shall be liable to deprivation for the wilful neglect of the same.

If the Professor shall engage in any occupation in or out of College which the Provost and Senior Fellows shall pronounce to be incompatible with the proper discharge of his professorial duties, and shall not immediately abandon the same when required by them so to do, he shall be liable to deprivation.

REGIUS PROFESSOR OF GREEK.

By the Statutes of Charles I. one of the Senior Fellows was annually elected, on the 20th of November, as Greek Lecturer, and bound to deliver Lectures three times a week, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, to all Bachelors in Arts, and Scholars of the Sophister Classes.[a] This office, with the same mode of election, duties, and regulations, but with an increased salary, was constituted a Regius Professorship of Greek, by the Statute of George III. in the year 1761.[b]

By the Statute 18 Victoria, the Provost and Senior Fellows were empowered to elect one of the Junior Fellows to fill this office. This Statute was carried into effect by a Decree of the Board and Visitors, dated November 21, 1855, of which the following are the chief provisions:—

1. The Professor shall receive a fixed annual salary of £200, together with such portion of the Tuition Fees as he would otherwise receive, according to his standing among the Fellows.
2. He shall not hold the office of Tutor, or any place or appointment incident to a Junior Fellowship, except the office of Junior Proctor; and he shall vacate the Professorship on ceasing to be a Junior Fellow.
3. His duties as Professor shall be defined, from time to time, by the Provost and Senior Fellows; and he shall be liable to deprivation for any wilful neglect of the same.
4. In case of sickness, or any other unavoidable impediment to the proper discharge of his duties, the Board shall have the power of appointing a Deputy, and of transferring to him the above-named fixed salary, either in whole or in part, while such impediment exists.
5. If he shall engage in any other occupation, in or out of College, which the Provost and Senior Fellows shall pronounce to be incompatible with the proper discharge of his duties as Professor, and shall not immediately abandon the same, when required by them to do so, he shall be liable to deprivation.

On June 29, 1895, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, that the portion of the income of the Professor of Greek payable to him out of the Tutorial Fund, under the Decree of November 21, 1855, should in future be paid to him by the Bursar out of the general funds of the College.

ERASMUS SMITH'S PROFESSORS OF ORATORY, HISTORY, AND ENGLISH LITERATURE.

A Professorship of Oratory and History was founded along with the Professorship of Natural and Experimental Philosophy in the year 1724, in pursuance of an Act of Parliament.

An extract from this Act, containing the principal regulations with respect to these Professorships, will be found under the head "Erasmus Smith's Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy."

In the year 1762 the Professorship of Oratory and History was made a Professorship of Oratory only, and a new Professorship of History founded.

On the 21st November, 1855, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows that Erasmus Smith's Professor of Oratory should be also Professor of English Literature.

On the 6th April, 1867, this enactment was repealed; the Professorship of English Literature was made a distinct office, and it was decreed that the Professor of Oratory should receive only the salary payable by the Board of Erasmus Smith.

PROFESSOR OF ENGLISH LITERATURE.

The Professorship of English Literature was originally founded in connexion with Erasmus Smith's Professorship of Oratory (see before); but it was constituted into a distinct Professorship by the Decree of the Board and Visitors, dated April 6, 1867; and a salary of £100 attached to the office. This salary was increased to £140 by a Decree of May 29, 1869, and further increased to £300 by a Decree of December 9, 1871.

On June 8, 1874, the Board extended the term of Dr. Dowden's Professorship of English Literature in the same manner and under the same conditions as are contained in the Decree of May 30, 1874 (see Professors of the Romance Languages and of German), and by a Decree of May 6, 1885, the salary assigned to the Professorship was raised to £500 during his tenure of the office.

Subsequently, to remove any doubt as to the efficacy of the resolution of June 8, 1874, to carry out the provisions therein referred to, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows with the consent of the Visitors on January 13, 1900, that the provisions of the Decree of May 30, 1874, applicable to the Professors therein named, shall be extended and be applicable to Dr. Dowden.

> "Whereas, our right trusty and well beloved Counsellor, John Hely Hutchinson, Provost of our College, of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin, has introduced into the said College two Professors or Teachers of Modern Languages, the one of whom teaches the French and German, and the other the Spanish and Italian Languages. Now we, being desirous to support the intentions of our said Provost, for the good of our said College, have given and granted to the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars, the yearly sum of two hundred pounds payable out of such our revenues in our kingdom of Ireland as are liable thereto, to commence from the 29th day of September last, and to be payable half yearly on the 25th day of March and 29th day of September, one hundred pounds yearly of the said sum to be paid to a Professor or Teacher of the French and German, and the other one hundred pounds yearly to be paid to a Professor or Teacher of Spanish and Italian. The said Professors or Teachers to be resident in the said College, and to be subject to such regulations and orders as the Provost and Senior Fellows shall from time to time make for their direction and government, the said Professors or Teachers to be appointed by us, our heirs and successors, during our pleasure."

In the year 1786 the Professorship of French and German was divided into two, the Rev. F. Bessonet being appointed Professor of French, and Lieut.-Colonel Hamilton, Professor of German; but in 1797 the two Professorships were again united.

By Letters Patent (22 Vict.—December 1, 1858) the preceding Letter, dated October 29, 1776, was repealed.

It was decreed by the Board and Visitors, on January 24, 1859, that a teacher of Italian and Spanish should be appointed for such period as they should think fit, at a salary of £100 per annum and rooms in the College, and with liberty to charge to such students as might apply for instruction such fees as the Provost and Senior Fellows should from time to time authorize and appoint.

It was decreed by the Board and Visitors on June 14, 1862—That there be founded in Trinity College two Professorships of Modern Languages, namely—a Professorship of French and German, and a Professorship of Italian and Spanish, each of them tenable for five years, the duties of the Professorships to be determined, from time to time, by the Provost and Senior Fellows, and the salaries attached to each to be £100 per annum.

By a Decree of June 9, 1866, the Provost and Senior Fellows were empowered to appoint a Professor of French and another Professor of German if they should think fit, the duties of the Professors to be determined, from time to time, by the Provost and Senior Fellows, and the salary attached to each to be £100.

By a Decree of May 29, 1869, the salaries of the Professor of German and of the Professor of Italian and Spanish were increased from £100 to £200 per annum, for each Professor; and it was decreed that the Professor of Italian and Spanish should in future be styled the Professor of the Romance Languages.

On the 30th of May, 1874, a Decree was passed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, in reference to the Professor of Applied Chemistry, the Professor of Sanskrit and Comparative Philology, the Professor of German, the Professor of the Romance Languages, and the Professor of Music, from which the following is extracted:—

> "It is therefore decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, that each of the present Professors above mentioned shall hold his Professorship for life, subject to deprivation by the Provost and Senior Fellows if, in their judgment, he shall have wilfully neglected any of the duties prescribed to his office, or if he shall engage in any occupation in or out of College which the Provost and Senior Fellows shall pronounce to be incompatible with the proper discharge of his professorial duties, and shall not immediately abandon the same when required by them so to do: And it is further decreed, that if any of the said Professors shall happen to be incapacitated for the efficient performance of his duties, by age, permanent infirmity, or other sufficient cause, it shall be in the power of the Provost and Senior Fellows to declare the Professorship vacant, and to assign to the retiring Professor such pension as they shall think fit—in determining the amount of which they shall have regard, among other considerations, to the length of time during which he held the Professorship; provided that in no case shall the amount of the pension exceed two-thirds of his salary."

By Decrees of December 22, 1888, and June 29, 1895, the salary of the Professor of German was increased to £300 during the tenure of the present Professor.

PROFESSOR OF IRISH.

In the year 1840 a sum of money was subscribed for the purpose of aiding in the foundation of a Professorship of Irish in the University. The Board of Trinity College agreed to pay annually the difference between the interest of the sum subscribed and £100 for a limited period, in anticipation of the completion of the subscription. The Professor is nominated by the Trustees of the Fund, subject to the approval of the Provost and Senior Fellows, who have also power to determine the period during which the Professorship shall be held. The original endowment produces annually about £103.

By a Decree of the Board and Visitors, dated December 9, 1871, the salary paid annually out of the funds of the College to the Professor of Irish was raised to £100.

PROFESSOR OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

THIS Professorship was founded in the year 1832 by the Most Rev. On March 31, 1866, by a Decree of the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, the Professorship was permanently endowed, out of the College Funds, with a salary of £100 per annum, and the Board were empowered, from time to time, to fix the tenure of the office, and appoint the duties of the Professor.

The regulations on which the Professorship was originally established are as follows:—

1. The Professor to be at least a Master of Arts, or Bachelor in Civil Law, who has regularly graduated in the University of Dublin, Oxford, or Cambridge.
2. The Professor, from time to time, to be elected by the Provost and Senior Fellows of Trinity College.
3. No person to hold the office for more than five successive years, or to be re-elected until after the expiration of two years.
4. Every Professor to read in Term, during any one or more of the Academical Terms, in a place appointed by the Provost, a Course of Lectures on Political Economy, consisting of nine Lectures at the least; and also, during every year, to print and present to the Provost, Senior Fellows, and Visitors, one of such Lectures at the least.
5. Every Professor to give public notice of the time proposed for the commencement of every Course of Lectures.
6. Every Professer neglecting to give notice, or, on the attendance of a Class, to read a Course of Lectures during the time and in the manner aforesaid, or to print and publish one Lecture at the least, forfeits the whole of his stipend or salary for the year or years in which such neglect takes place; the amount of the forfeiture to be laid out in the Funds, and the interest applied to the augmentation of the Professorship in future.

Some of the above regulations have since been altered. Candidates for the Professorship must be graduates of some chartered University in the United Kingdom.

A Lectureship in Ancient History had been established in the College by the Provost and Senior Fellows, in the year 1869. By a Decree of the Board and Visitors, dated December 9, 1871, this Lectureship was raised to the rank of a Professorship, to be tenable for five years, the duties to be determined from time to time by the Provost and Senior Fellows, and the annual salary to be £60.

On June 19, 1880, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, and with the approval of the Council:—That the Professor shall deliver five prelections on Ancient History during Trinity Term—one in each of the five Lecture weeks of that Term—and further that he shall deliver Catechetical Lectures in Ancient History at such times in the Academical year as the Provost and Senior Fellows shall prescribe.

And it was further decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, that in consideration of the increase of duties then appointed, the salary of the Professor then in office should be augmented by the sum of £60 per annum.

DIVINITY.

REGIUS PROFESSOR OF DIVINITY.

In Provost Temple's time the Professorship of Divinity appears to have been first founded. An endowment of £100, producing £8 per annum, had been bequeathed for that purpose by James Cottrell, Esq., who died at York, 1595. This was afterwards assured to the College by a deed executed by Mr. Hamilton, who borrowed it and charged it upon lands at Holywood, County Down. In 1607 Dr. James Ussher, the celebrated Archbishop of Armagh, was appointed Professor, being at that time a Fellow of Trinity College. In the year 1674, by Letters Patent of Charles II., dated 9th May, the Professorship was more largely endowed out of the lands then given to the College by the Act of Settlement, and the Professor was recognised by King's Letter as an officer of the University, chambers being assigned to him in the College, "to be enjoyed by him without any obligation of performing such ordinary disputations, commonplaces, or other exercises, which Masters of Arts and others who have chambers in the College are obliged to perform."

By the Statute of Geo. III., De Professoribus, &c., in the year 1761, the Professor was constituted Regius Professor of Divinity, and the office placed under the following regulations:—

1. That the Professor be elected from the Senior Fellows of the College, within three months after knowledge of a vacancy by the Provost, or Vice-Provost, and major part of the Senior Fellows, under the name of the Regius Professor of Sacred Theology.

2. That the Professor so elected, immediately after his election, shall vacate his Fellowship, resigning all right, power, and privileges of a Fellow.

3. That all Bachelors of Arts (except those who are engaged in the study of Law and Medicine), and all Masters of Arts of the first and second year, shall be the auditors of the Divinity Professor.

4. That the Professor shall deliver at the beginning of each Term a Prelection, laying down and explaining the order and subject of the studies appointed for that Term. He shall lecture twice a week during Term, explaining the Holy Scriptures, and discussing the controversies with the enemies of Christianity and of our Church. He shall lecture and hold Examinations in Ecclesiastical History, and shall appoint books, with the approval of the Provost and Senior Fellows, in which the Students are to be examined. He shall prescribe Exercises in Theology, and act as Moderator in disputations for Degrees in Divinity. He shall also preach before the University in defence of the Christian religion, on four Sundays in the year, to be appointed by the Provost, or, in his absence, by the Vice-Provost.

5. The Professor, after his election, is admitted and confirmed in his office by the Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor, and may hold the Professorship for life, with a power of having a Deputy appointed in case of sickness or infirmity.

By another Statute passed in the year 1814, the endowment of the Professorship was still further increased, and the following additional regulations, amongst others, were enacted :—

1. That the Professor, in addition to the duties already prescribed to him by the Statutes of the College, shall read annually four public Prelections in Divinity, at such times and in such places as the Provost and Senior Fellows shall prescribe, and that the said times and places so prescribed shall be entered in the College Register, and public notice given of them.

2. That the said Professor shall hold an annual examination of the Students in Divinity, during the month of November, for two days (to be appointed by the Provost and Senior Fellows), during four hours each day ; in the morning of the first day, in the Old Testament, and in the afternoon, in the New Testament ; in the morning of the second day, in Ecclesiastical History, and in the afternoon, in the Articles and Liturgy of the Church of England.[a]

3. And whereas, by the former Statute, the Provost and Senior Fellows were limited to elect a Proressor of Divinity from among the Senior Fellows, they are permitted by this new Statute to elect any Fellow of the College, whether Senior or Junior, into the said Professorship, provided the Fellow so elected shall be a Doctor of Divinity, and shall be the best qualified amongst the candidates for the said office. always preferring, in cases of equal fitness, the Senior in rank among the Fellows to the Junior.

4. And further, that the Professor of Divinity so elected shall hold the Professorship during his natural life, unless removed, according to the Statutes of the College, for neglect of duty or other offence, or unless he be promoted to a Bishopric. And the Deputy who may be appointed during the temporary incapacity of the Professor shall (unless he may at any time choose to resign) hold his office during the continuance of the incapacity of the Professor, and until the 20th of November next ensuing after said incapacity has ceased, and due notice been given that the Professor is ready to perform the duties of his office, provided said Deputy shall continue a Fellow, and shall perform all duties to which he is bound as such.

By the Statute 18 Victoria, passed in the year 1855, the Provost and Senior Fellows are permitted to elect any Fellow or Ex-Fellow, being a Doctor in Divinity, to fill the Professorship in case of vacancy ; and, in like manner, they are empowered to elect a Deputy to the Professor, whether temporary or permanent, from among the Fellows or Ex-Fellows. In case it shall become necessary to elect a permanent Deputy, due notice of such election shall previously be given to all the Fellows or Ex-Fellows, being Doctors in Divinity. In the event of a former Fellow, holding any living or ecclesiastical benefice, being elected to the Professorship, it shall be lawful for the Provost and Senior Fellows, if they think fit, to require him to resign the said living or benefice, before he is sworn or admitted into possession of the Professorship: and if, within one calendar month after the date of such requisition, the certificate of his resignation be not lodged with the Registrar, it is enacted that his election to the Professorship shall become ipso facto vacant, and the Provost and Senior Fellows shall proceed to a new election.

[a] The regulations connected with this Examination were altered in the year 1858. See Vol. i., "Divinity School," § vi., "Theological Exhibitions."

By Letters Patent (43 Vict., April 27, 1880), it was enacted that:—It shall be lawful to elect to the office of Regius Professor of Divinity, or of Deputy to such Professor, any Doctor in Divinity of the University who is in Holy Orders and a Communicant Member of the Church of Ireland.

ARCHBISHOP KING'S LECTURER IN DIVINITY.

In the year 1718, Dr. William King, Archbishop of Dublin, gave to the College the sum of £500 to found a Divinity Lecture, for the better instruction of such Bachelors of Arts as intended to enter into Holy Orders; and upon his death, in 1729, a further sum of £500 was devised to his nephew, the Rev. Robert Dougatt, in trust, to purchase a further maintenance for the said Lecturer.

This endowment appears to have been annexed to a Lectureship which had previously been maintained in the College. Until the year 1833 it was an annual office, and held by a Senior Fellow; the salary, also, was so small as to make it impossible to separate it from other places.

To remedy this inconvenience, and to render the Lectureship more efficient in the Divinity education of the Students, the Provost and Senior Fellows resolved, on the 30th of March, 1833, That the office of Archbishop King's Lecturer in Divinity shall henceforth be held by a Junior Fellow, who is to resign his pupils, and to be incapable of any College office (except that of University Preacher), and who is to continue to hold the office until he shall be elected a Senior Fellow, or be removed by death, resignation, deprivation, or any other cause, and that the salary of the Lecturer shall be £700 per annum.

On June 21, 1883, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, that:

Any member of the Church of Ireland who is in Holy Orders, and of the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity in the University of Dublin, shall be eligible to the office of Archbishop King's Lecturer in Divinity:

Such Lecturer shall, on his appointment, be required to vacate any clerical appointment with cure of souls held by him at the time of his election, which the Provost and Senior Fellows shall consider inconsistent with the discharge of his duties in the College:

The salary of said Lectureship shall remain as fixed by the Decree of March 30, 1833:

Should the said Lecturer cease to be a member of the Church of Ireland, or should he teach any doctrines contrary to those of the Church of Ireland, as set forth in the Book of Common Prayer, and in the Articles of Religion of the Church of Ireland, he shall be liable to be deprived of his Lectureship:

The duties of the said Lecturer shall be defined, from time to time, by the Provost and Senior Fellows: and he shall be liable to deprivation for wilful neglect of the same:

If it shall appear to the Provost and Senior Fellows that the said Lecturer, through illness or any other cause, is unable to perform the duties of his office, it shall be in the power of the Provost and

Senior Fellows to appoint a deputy to discharge his duties, and to assign to the said deputy a remuneration not exceeding Eighty Pounds for each Term of Lectures, to be paid out of the salary of the said Lecturer.

If the aforesaid Lecturer shall engage in any occupation, in or out of College, which the Provost and Senior Fellows shall pronounce to be incompatible with the proper discharge of his duties, and shall not immediately abandon the same when required by them so to do, he shall be liable to deprivation:

The tenure of said Lectureship shall be for life (except, as otherwise provided, in the case of the appointment of a Junior Fellow); but should the Lecturer become incapacitated for the efficient performance of his duties by age, permanent infirmity, or other sufficient cause, it shall be in the power of the Provost and Senior Fellows to declare the Lectureship vacant, and to assign to the retiring Lecturer such pension as they shall think fit, in determining the amount of which they shall have regard, among other considerations, to the length of time during which he held the Lectureship; provided that in no case shall the amount of the pension exceed two-thirds of his salary.

If a Junior Fellow be appointed to the office of Archbishop King's Lecturer in Divinity, he shall vacate it upon ceasing to be a Junior Fellow, or upon his acceptance after his appointment of any other office incident to a Junior Fellowship; and should he, while Lecturer, become permanently incapacitated, his retiring pension shall amount to an annuity equal to what he would have received as Junior Fellow, according to the provisions of the Royal Letters Patent, 43 Vict., A.D. 1880.

THE WALLACE DIVINITY LECTURERSHIP.

WHEREAS a sum of £200 Bank of Ireland Stock has been given by the Rev. William Wallace, D.D., LITT.D., Rector of St. Luke's Church, Bow, London, E., to aid the teaching of the Divinity School in any way expedient, and specially, if it be found fitting, towards the provision of instruction in voice-production and in reading; and whereas a further sum of £50 Bank of Ireland Stock has been given for the like purpose by the Rev. George Salmon, D.D., Provost, it was resolved on December 17, 1901:—

1. That a Lecturership to be called the "Wallace Divinity Lecturership" shall be established on this foundation, and that to the office a salary shall be attached, arising from the interest on the above-mentioned sums and on such other moneys as may hereafter be added to the fund.

2. That the Lecturer shall hold office for a period of five years only, but that he shall be eligible for re-election.

3. That the Board of Electors shall consist of the Provost, the Regius Professor of Divinity, and Archbishop King's Lecturer in Divinity; provided always that if the Provost for the time being be not a member of the Church of Ireland, the Senior of the Fellows who belongs to that Church shall take his place on the Board, it being the intention of the founder, the Rev. Dr. Wallace, that the Board of Election shall always consist of members of the said Church.

4. That the duties attaching to the office shall be defined from time to time by the said Board, consisting of the Provost, the Regius Professor of Divinity, and Archbishop King's Lecturer; who shall also, in the event of the Divinity School ever being separated from Trinity College, be the Trustees of all moneys given or bequeathed to the Wallace Divinity Lecture Fund.

5. That the Regius Professor of Divinity and Archbishop King's Lecturer shall have power to require, from any Divinity student in whose case they think fit so to do, attendance on the Lectures delivered under this trust, as a condition precedent to the issuing of his Divinity Testimonium.

Two further donations were given by Dr. Wallace on May 2, and November 7, 1902, to purchase £100 Bank of Ireland Stock; and a further donation on November 28, 1904, to purchase £70 Bank of Ireland Stock for this endowment.

LAW.

REGIUS PROFESSOR OF LAWS.

The study of the Laws was originally provided for in Trinity College by the Statute which enacted that one of the Fellows should be elected Jurist. He was bound to devote himself to the profession of the Law, and, within two years after his election, to read a lecture once in every Term in that faculty. The first mention of a public Professor of Laws appears in the College Register, under the date Nov. 20, 1667, when Mr. Henry Styles was elected "Publ. Prof. Legum." An endowment of £40 per annum was provided for the Professorship so founded by the Royal Letter of Charles II., dated November 4, 1668.

On the 1st of June, 1850, the following resolutions were passed by the Provost and Senior Fellows with regard to this Professorship:—

1. That the Regius Professorship of Civil Law, hitherto usually held by a Senior Fellow, shall in future be open to all Doctors of Laws of Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin, who are barristers of at least six years' standing. The Professorship shall be tenable for the term of seven years.

2. That the present salary of forty pounds Irish be raised to £100 a year present currency; and the Professor shall continue to be entitled to the usual fees paid by Graduates in Law at the Commencements, together with such share of the fees of Students of King's Inns as may be appointed by the Benchers.

3. That the Regius Professor of Civil Law shall deliver Lectures in Civil Law and General Jurisprudence.

4. That the Professor of Feudal and English Law shall deliver Lectures on the subjects of Real Property and Equity.

5. That the Lectures of these two Professors shall be delivered in College, on such days of Term, and at such hours, as may be agreed on upon consultation with the Education Committee of the Benchers; and that not fewer than twelve Lectures be given in each of the three College Terms.

6. That these Lectures be open to Students and to the public, gratuitously; and that no fee be required from Students at King's Inns, beyond that already paid by them upon their admission into that Society.

7. That Law Students, having their names on the books of King's Inns, shall have the same privileges in the Senior Sophister year of the Undergraduate Course as are allowed to Divinity, Medical, and Engineering Students.

8. That the Law Professors shall, at the conclusion of each term, give Certificates of attendance to such Students of the Society of King's Inns as shall have attended five-sixths of the total number of Lectures in the Term; and shall also furnish to the Senior Lecturer, at the end of each Term, a list of all Students having their names on the College books, who have had credit for full attendance on their Lectures during the Term.

On December 18, 1858, it was decreed by the Board and Visitors:—That, from and after the 20th November, 1858, the salaries of the Professors of the several Faculties shall be augmented respectively by amounts equal to the annual averages of the fees on degrees or matriculations paid to those officers in the seven years preceding the said date; and that the said fees heretofore payable to them shall, from and after that date, be transferred to the general funds of the College.

On March 31, 1866, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows with the approval of the Visitors:—That the salary of the Regius Professor of Civil Law shall he increased by the sum of £110 annually, such sum to include the compensation hitherto payable under the Decree of the Board and Visitors, dated December 18, 1858; and that the augmentation shall last until the termination of the present Professor's tenure of office, and shall then cease and determine, unless the Provost and Senior Fellows shall otherwise ordain.

On February 6, 1871, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors:—That, should any of the Fellows of the College be hereafter elected to the Professorship of Civil Law, he shall hold the said Professorship for the term of his natural life, subject to the following conditions:—

1. Immediately on his admission to the Professorship, his Fellowship shall become ipso facto vacant.

2. He shall receive a salary of five hundred pounds per annum.

3. His duties shall be defined from time to time by the Provost and Senior Fellows, and he shall be subject to the same penalties for wilful neglect of the same as are laid down in the Letters Patent of his Majesty King George III., in reference to the Professor of Feudal and English Law.

4. In case it shall appear to the Provost and Senior Fellows that the said Professor, through illness or any other necessary cause, is unable to perform the duties of his Professorship, it shall be in the power of the Provost and Senior Fellows to appoint a deputy to perform the said duties, and to assign to the said deputy a remuneration not exceeding fifty pounds for each term of lectures, to be paid out of the salary of the said Professor.

On April 25, 1888, it was decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the approval of the Council, and the consent of the Visitors:—That it shall be the duty of the Regius Professor of Laws to treat the entire subject of Civil Law, Jurisprudence, and International Law, in his Lectures; and that the said Professor shall deliver not less than fifteen Lectures in each Term, and shall perform such additional duties as the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the approval of the Council, shall from time to time appoint; and that the tenure of his office shall be seven years, as heretofore:

And whereas, in consideration of such increase of the duties of the Regius Professor of Laws, it is expedient to increase the salary assigned to the Professor by the Decree of the Board and Visitors, dated 1st June, 1850: it is further decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, that the salary assigned to the said Regius Professorship of Laws shall henceforth be £330 per annum.

The Regius Professor of Laws is Moderator in all disputations for Degrees in Laws; and presents the candidates for those Degrees at the Public commencements of the University. He holds an annual Examination, in Trinity Term, of those Students who have attended his lectures for three Terms, at which Examination prizes are adjudged to the best answerers.

On Nov. 22, 1902, it was decreed by the Board, Council, and Visitors that the Regius Professor of Laws shall be Professor of Civil Law and General Jurisprudence, and that the salary of the Professor during the present tenure of the office shall be £180 a year (in addition to fees paid to him by King's Inns.

By a Decree of April 25, 1888, the Professorship was discontinued and other arrangements (see Regius Professor of Laws) made for the discharge of the duties attached to it.

MEDICINE.

History of the School of Physic.

"The School of Physic in Ireland" is constituted by the Statute of 40 Geo. III., cap. 84; and the Statute of 30th Vict., cap. 9.

The Buildings and Laboratories of the School of Physic belong to the Provost and Senior Fellows of Trinity College, and no person can Lecture or Demonstrate in them without the permission of the Provost and Senior Fellows.

The discipline of the School, as regards the intern and extern Students, is entirely in the hands of the Provost and Senior Fellows.

The departments of Medicine and of Surgery are presided over by the Regius Professor of Physic, and the Regius Professor of Surgery, respectively, to whom is committed the charge of the conduct of the Examinations in Medicine and Surgery.

The Teaching Staff of the School of Physic consists of the following Professors and Lecturers:—

Appointed by Trinity College.

*1. The Professor of Anatomy and Chirurgery.
*2. The Professor of Chemistry.
*3. The Professor of Botany.
*4. The Professor of Surgery.
*5. The University Anatomist.
6. The Professor of Zoology and Comparative Anatomy.
7. Lecturer on Medical Jurisprudence.
8. Lecturer in Pathology.

Appointed by the College of Physicians.

*1. King's Professor of Institutes of Medicine.
*2. King's Professor of Practice of Medicine.
*3. King's Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacy.
*4. King's Professor of Midwifery.

Mention is made in the College Register, A.D. 1598, of a concordatum of £40 yearly, granted by the Government to the University, for a "Physitian's pay." This is believed to have been the origin of the Regius Professorship of Physic.

In Bishop Bedell's Statutes, A. D. 1628, it is enacted that one of the Fellows shall be Professor of Medicine, and shall deliver Lectures in that Faculty every Term, an enactment subsequently confirmed by the Letters Patent, 13 Car. I.:

---

* The Professorships marked thus * are named in the School of Physic Act, or in the Amendment Act.

> "Volumus insuper, ut et Jurista, et Medicus, post secundum professionis annum, semel quovis termino in sua facultate prælegant."

By the Charter and Letters Patent given to Trinity College, A.D. 1637, 13 Car. I., cap. 18, it is provided that one of the Fellows of the College shall devote himself to the study of Medicine:—

> "Neminem autem volumus invitum cogi ad studia hæc, sed eligatur aliquis, qui professiones istas [i. e. jurisprudentiæ et medicinæ] respective sibi optat, modo talis inveniri possit inter Socios."

The Offices of Medical Fellow and Professor of Physic appear to have been held by the same persons down to the time of the distinguished Dr. John Stearne, the founder of the College of Physicians, after whom the two offices were generally held by different persons.

So seldom, in fact, were the Medical Fellows found competent to hold the Professorship, that there are three instances only on record, since A.D. 1662, of the same person holding both offices, viz.:—

1. John Stearne.
2. Richard Helsham.
3. Whitley Stokes.

REGIUS PROFESSORS OF PHYSIC.

There does not exist any Charter, Royal Letter, or Statute constituting the Professorship of Physic in Trinity College, which seems to have grown up spontaneously, to meet the educational wants of the College, and the Professorship is not named "Regius" in any public document until A. D. 1868, when it is so styled, in the Letters Patent of Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, constituting a Regius Professorship of Surgery in Trinity College. The Professor is named, simply, "Professor of Physick in Trinity College," in the Letters Patent 2 Geo. I., A.D. 1715; in the Statute 15 Geo. II., A.D. 1741; in the Statute 25 Geo. III., cap. 42, A.D. 1784; and in the Statute (School of Physic Act) 40 Geo. III., cap. 84, A.D. 1800.

The salary of the Regius Professor of Physic was originally £100 Irish, or £92 6*s.* 2*d.* present currency; by a Decree of the Board and Visitors, dated July 12, 1834, it was increased by £100: and by a Decree dated January 23, 1878, it was fixed at £100.

UNIVERSITY PROFESSORS OF ANATOMY AND SURGERY.

In the year 1710 the first mention is made in the College Register of Lectures in Anatomy, Chemistry, and Botany, in the University. On the 14th of June in that year, ground was laid out for a Laboratory and Anatomical Theatre; and on the opening of the building in August of the year following, Dr. Hoyle lectured in Anatomy, Dr. Nicholson in Botany, and Dr. Griffith in Chemistry.

By an Act passed in 1785 (25th George III.), the University Lectureship in Anatomy was converted into a Professorship. In the statute 40 Geo. III., 1800, the Professorship is spoken of as the University Professorship of "Anatomy and Chirurgery," a title which appears to have been generally in use since 1864. On October 24, 1866, it was determined by the Provost and Senior Fellows that the fixed salary of the Professor of Anatomy should be £250. In 1903 the salary was changed to £275.

UNIVERSITY ANATOMISTS.

A University Anatomist was first appointed in 1716. (See above.) By the Act [30 Vict. c. 9, April 5, 1867], the Professor of Surgery in Trinity College and the University Anatomist were directed to deliver the Clinical Lectures in Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital which had previously been delivered by the University Professors of Botany and Chemistry, as required by Act [40 Geo. III. c. 84, 1800], and to receive the Fees payable before that date to the said Professors of Botany and Chemistry. By the same Act, if the Professor of Surgery or the University Anatomist neglected to attend the said Hospital or deliver the Clinical Lectures required by the said Act, the Provost and Senior Fellows were empowered to dispense with his delivering such Lectures, and to appoint a Surgeon to attend the Hospital and deliver the Lectures, who would be entitled to receive and be paid the Fees to which the Professor so neglecting to attend the said Hospital would have been entitled. By the same Act, the Provost and Senior Fellows could make regulations respecting the said Lectures, with the assent of the President and Fellows of the King and Queen's College of Physicians.

[a] Dr. Foreside was afterwards elected Regius Professor of Physic, in the room of Dr. Cope, on the 2nd February, 1742–3.

[b] This rule was made in consequence of a difference with the College of Physicians, the President and Censors of that body having been the Examiners from 1695 to 1761. See Dr. Belcher's Register of Coll. of Phys., 1866, p. 10.

On 15th November, 1873, the Provost and Senior Fellows enacted the following rules for regulating the duties and emoluments of the University Anatomist:—

1. He shall receive a moiety of the net profits of the Dissecting Room fees.

2. He shall receive Clinical fees in Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital under the School of Physic Acts.

3. His duties connected with the Dissecting Room shall be regulated by the Provost and Senior Fellows.

4. He shall not hold office in any Clinical Hospital other than that of Sir Patrick Dun.

5. The tenure of his office shall terminate with that of the Professor of Anatomy and Chirurgery, as fixed by the School of Physic Act, 40 George III. cap. 84.

On November 14, 1891, the Board resolved that:—

1. In future the University Anatomist shall be placed under the control of the Professor of Anatomy and Chirurgery, subject to the authority of the Provost and Senior Fellows.

2. He shall receive a salary of £100, payable out of the Dissecting Room Fees, for the delivery of the Course of Lectures on Applied Anatomy now given in the Winter Session: and shall have no other obligatory duties to discharge in the Dissecting Room.

Subsequent to this date, duties before assigned to the University Anatomist in connexion with the Dissecting Room were performed by the Professor of Anatomy and Surgery and the Demonstrators. The title of Chief Demonstrator was given to Dr. A. F. Dixon in the University Calendar for 1894; but the title and office were not formally recognized by the Board until April 21, 1895. (See below.)

Since the latter date, the duties associated with the post of University Anatomist have been those assigned to it by the Act [30 Vict.] in connexion with Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, and the appointment has not carried with it any duties in connexion with the Anatomical School of Trinity College.

PROFESSOR OF SURGERY.

On March 3, 1849, it was decreed by the Board:—That a Professor of Surgery be elected, at a salary of £100 a year, with the view of carrying into effect the curriculum of medical studies proposed by the Medical Professors.

The duties and emoluments of the Professor were further regulated by the following Decree of the Board and Visitors, passed on November 4, 1873:—

> Whereas a Professorship of Surgery was founded in Trinity College by an Order of the Provost and Senior Fellows, dated March 3, 1849, and in pursuance of such Order, Dr. Robert W. Smith was elected the first Professor on October 13th of the same year; and whereas, since that time by the School of Physic Amendment Act, 30th Victoria, Chap. 9, Section 3, the Professor elected on this foundation was established as one of the Clinical Lecturers in the Hospital of Sir Patrick Dun: and whereas it is expedient that the aforesaid Professorship should be continued, and its foundation confirmed, by virtue of the powers granted in that behalf to the Board and Visitors by the Statute 18th Victoria: and whereas it is desirable to make further regulations respecting the duties of the Professor, and to assimilate the tenure of the Professorship to that of the other offices established in Trinity College under the School of Physic Act, 40 Geo. III., Chapter 84:
> It is accordingly decreed by the Provost and Senior Fellows, with the consent of the Visitors, that the Professor of Surgery shall in future be elected by the Provost and Senior Fellows, on the following conditions:—
> 1. He shall receive a fixed salary of £150 per annum, to be paid out of the College funds.
> 2. He shall receive Clinical Fees from the Students in Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, under the provisions of the School of Physic Acts hereinbefore mentioned.
> 3. He shall also receive Fees from Students attending his Lectures in Trinity College, the amount of such Fees to be regulated from time to time by the Provost and Senior Fellows.

SIR PATRICK DUN'S HOSPITAL.[d]

Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital was founded by the School of Physic Act in 1800; and is now governed by the directions laid down in that Statute, and in the School of Physic Amendment Act of 1867.

For several years previous to its erection, great inconvenience was felt from the want of clinical lectures in connexion with the School of Physic; and several temporary expedients were made use of to remedy this defect. The Statute 25 Geo. III. provided that, until an hospital should be built, clinical courses might be given in some hospital in Dublin. Accordingly, on the 14th January, 1788, the College of Physicians to some extent fulfilled the spirit of the law, by taking a house in Clarendon-street for a clinical hospital. After a time this had to be given up, chiefly on the score of expense, a committee reporting to the College, on the 14th August,

[d] The account of Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital given here is taken from a Memoir of Si Patrick Dun, by Rev. T. W. Belcher, M. D. (Dublin, 1866).

1790, that the cost of maintaining the institution was much higher than in other hospitals in Dublin—the cost of drugs alone being eight times as high as at other hospitals. On the 8th of November, 1790, the furniture of the hospital in Clarendon-street was ordered to be removed to Mercer's Hospital: and in case it could not be there accommodated, further directions were given to remove it to Steevens' Hospital. On the 9th of July, 1792, a lease of a house on Blind-quay (now Wellington-quay) was accepted by the College of Physicians for an hospital. This was called Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, and was put in working order for thirty clinical patients, on the 27th September in the same year. This institution seemed to work for a short time only, for, on the 16th of February, 1793, the College took into consideration the appointment of a Physician-in-Ordinary to Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital in Lower Exchange-street. According to the College Journals, this was working in 1797; and on the 21st of January, 1799, Mercer's Hospital was reported ready for the reception of clinical patients on Dun's foundation.

At first the hospital in Lower Exchange-street was kept open during the whole year, then only during a part of the year; next, the patients decreased in number, until, finally, it would appear from the evidence given before the Lords' Committee in 1799, that at one time only one patient was to be found in it.

By the Statute 31 Geo. III., the College of Physicians was empowered to raise £1000 to build an hospital; but nothing was done in that way until after 1800, when the School of Physic Act gave more clear and extended powers.

By this Act the building of the hospital was entrusted to eight Commissioners, viz., the Right Honourable Sackville Hamilton, the Provost of Trinity College, and the President of the College of Physicians for the time being, Sir Francis Hutchinson, Baronet, the Hon. George Knox, Dr. Arthur Browne (LL.D.), William Digges Latouche, and Abraham Wilkinson, Esquires. These Commissioners selected a lot of ground in Grand Canal-street, of which a lease for 998 years was granted to the President and Fellows of the College of Physicians, from David Courtney, Esq. The College seal was affixed to this lease on the 10th of May, 1802. In 1808, £6346 of Sir Patrick Dun's funds having been expended in the erection of the west wing of the hospital, and enclosing the ground, and making sewers, and there being no means for carrying on the building except the annual produce of the estates, which was quite inadequate, an application was made for Parliamentary aid, and in the ensuing session a grant of £6204 was obtained, for the purpose of finishing the wing then being erected, and for procuring, furnishing, and maintaining a temporary hospital.

On the 24th of June, 1808, the west wing being finished, and capable of affording accommodation to thirty patients, the Commissioners summoned a Board of the Governors nominated in the School of Physic Act, and delivered up to them the management of the institution, which was opened for clinical instruction on the 25th of October in the same year.

By the aid of subsequent Parliamentary grants the hospital was completed, and accommodation was provided in the hospital for Dun's Library, and for the Convocation Hall of the College of Physicians. The building of the hospital was commenced in 1803, and was completed in 1816, and the first College meeting there took place in 1818. The Board of Governors consists of the Visitors of the College of Physicians; the President, Vice-President, and Censors of the same; the Provost of Trinity College; and of twelve other persons chosen by the ex-officio Governors from among the subscribers to the hospital.

In 1864, the College of Physicians transferred to the Governors the entire use of the central portion of the building, with a view to the conversion of the hospital into a medico-chirurgical institution—a change which was considered desirable for the improvement of the School of Physic, medical cases only having been admissible previous to this alteration. This change has been attended with the best results, and has contributed, in some degree, to carry out the intention of Sir Patrick Dun, who, as appears from his will and deed, considered surgery to be a part of medicine—a view of the subject which Hippocrates and the ancients entertained, and which modern medical science has shown to be correct.

[a] The following list was first published in the University Calendar for 1858. It has been compiled partly from a parchment volume, in quarto, entitled, "The Book of Benefactors," preserved among the records of Trinity College, the entries in which extend from the year, 1591 to 1685; and partly from a list in the handwriting of the Rev. John Barrett, D.D., formerly Vice-Provost, which reaches down to the year 1775. The particulars respecting later donations and benefactions have been obtained from the College Register and other sources. The spelling and other peculiarities of the older entries have been closely adhered to.

[b] Sir William Fitzwilliam was born at Milton, in Northamptonshire. He married the sister of Sir Henry Sidney, Lord Deputy of Ireland; and he himself was five times Lord Deputy. ("Guil. Fitzwilliams, jam quintum Hiberniæ Prorex." Camden's Elizabeth, anno 1587.) See also Sir John Davies, Discoveries of Ireland, p. 257; and Fuller's Worthies of England—Northamptonshire.

Shortly after, he was appointed President of Connaught, and in that capacity forwarded from the City of Galway a contribution of one hundred pounds towards the foundation of Trinity College, as appears from a later entry in this list. There is a monument to his memory in Westminster Abbey.

[a] In the year 1601 the Spanish troops were defeated by the English at Kinsale, and Her Majesty's army, to commemorate their victory, subscribed the sum of £1800 from the arrears of their pay, to buy books to furnish the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, and committed this sum of £1800 to Dr. Luke Chaloner, and Mr. James Ussher, to buy books; for which purpose they went to London. "And it is somewhat remarkable" (says Dr. Parr), "that at this time (1603) when the said persons were at London, about the laying out this money in books, they there met Sir Thomas Bodley, buying books for his newly erected Library in Oxford, so that there began a correspondence between them upon this occasion, helping each other to procure the choicest and best books on several subjects that could be gotten; so that the famous Bodleyan Library at Oxford, and that of Dublin, began together."—Parr, Life of Ussher.

Dr. Mahaffy (Epoch in Irish History, pp. 20, 21) states that the foregoing account (by Dr. Bernard in his funeral sermon on Ussher) of the source of this benefaction is inaccurate, and writes:—"The facts are that officers serving in Ireland in 1591 subscribed from the pay due to them in bills a sum amounting to £623, for the purpose of a Library. The money was difficult to realise, and several attempts failed. At last Sir James Carroll, a man who had money dealings with the College for thirty years, got the money paid when Vice-Treasurer, but not till 1601."

[b] This was written in the reign of King Charles II. The grant here alluded to of £400 per annum (Irish currency) was originally made to Trinity College by Queen Elizabeth; and, as appears from the foregoing entries, was the oldest endowment which the Society possessed. As such, it was formally secured to Trinity College by the Act of Union in 1800. In June, 1855, the Provost and Senior Fellows were reluctantly compelled to surrender this grant to Government, in order to obtain, for the benefit of the Students of the University, the repeal of the Act of Parliament charging Stamp Duties on Degrees and Matriculations, which charges were imposed for the first time in the year 1842, and from the payment of which some other Universities in England and Ireland were exempt. The grant in question, therefore, has now ceased to exist; but the original deed of grant, under Queen Elizabeth's sign-manual, is carefully preserved among the Records of Trinity College.

The number and nature of the gifts to the College from King James are set forth in order by Dr. Mahaffy in his Epoch in Irish History, pp. 154, 155, 156, as follows:—

The first is a grant to James Ware as trustee for the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of various townlands (named) in Tipperary, Waterford, Kerry and Desmond, and Longford, either the estates of attainted men or of suppressed religious houses, such as Connall in Kildare, and S. Peter de Rabio (in Longford), at a total Crown rent of £7 18*s.* 8*d.*, "to hold for ever as of the Castle in Dublin, in common soccage." It is dated March 8th, in the king's eighth year, and is confirmed (secondly) by letters patent in his ninth year; also making a new grant of "such lands as the said Provost fellows and scholars now hold," thus confirming the gift of Elizabeth in 1599.

The third grant is dated August 29th, year eight, and gives to the College the three great estates of Toaghy in Armagh, Slutmulroony in Fermanagh, and Kilmacrenan in Donegal, together with the advowsons of nineteen livings in Fermanagh, Tyrone, Derry, and Donegal.

The fourth is the large grant of chantry lands in Dublin, 10th of April in his tenth

[b] Dr. Mahaffy (Epoch in Irish History, p. 239) adds Sir George Scott £20, and calls attention to a stray note in the Bursar's book, written upside down, to the receipts of 1676, which is as follows:—1636. Moneys collected for ye building Jan. 6. Receaved of S^{r} Charles Coote £95 0 0. Receaved from Sir James Ware £10 0 0. Receaved from Archdeacñ Maxwell £100.

[b] Archbishop James Ussher intended to bestow on Trinity College, Dublin, at his death, all his Library, consisting of 10,000 volumes, prints, and MSS. But when he lost all his property except his books, he was obliged to leave them as a fortune to his only daughter, Lady Tyrrell, then mother of a numerous family, and in narrow circumstances. The Library had cost him many thousand pounds. At his death, the King of Denmark wanted to buy it, and also Cardinal Mazarin; but the executors were forbidden by Cromwell to sell it to any without his consent. At last the officers and soldiers of the English Army, then in Ireland, wishing to emulate those of Elizabeth, purchased the whole Library for the sum of £22,000, together with all the Archbishop's manuscripts, and a choice, though not numerous, collection of ancient coins, with the design of presenting them to the Library of Trinity College. But when the books were brought to Ireland, Oliver Cromwell had them detained in the Castle, pretending that he would build a College or Hall, in which the collection might be preserved. In the end, Charles II., after the Restoration, gave all that remained in the Castle to the University of Dublin.—Parr, Life of Ussher.

Chancellors of the University.

The office of Chancellor of the University is tenable for life. According to the Charter of Queen Elizabeth, the right of electing the Chancellor was vested in the Provost and Fellows of Trinity College. This right was continued to the Provost and Senior Fellows by the Charter of Charles I.; but the Royal Statute of 1857 provides that in future the Chancellor shall be elected by the Senate of the University from a list of three persons nominated by the Provost and Senior Fellows, within one month after a vacancy shall have occurred. If the Senate decline or omit to elect, the nomination, for that time only, devolves on the Crown. The Chancellor must make the Declaration of office generally in the presence of two of the Senior Fellows deputed for that purpose, before the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, or before the Lord Chancellor of Ireland. The first Chancellor was nominated in the Charter of Queen Elizabeth.[a] which in 1653 Henry Cromwell, Commander-in-chief of the Parliamentary Forces, had been appointed by the Provost and Fellows. Resigned the office of Lord Lieutenant in 1684, when he was created Duke of Ormonde in the Peerage of England. Died July 21, 1688.[a]

1688. James, second Duke of Ormonde, grandson of the former, son of Thomas, Earl of Ossory, who died in 1680. Born April 29, 1665, and educated at Christ Church, Oxford. Elected Chancellor of the Universities of Oxford and Dublin in the same year, 1688, in the room of his grandfather. He was present with King William III. at the battle of the Boyne; and in 1702 was appointed by Queen Anne Commander-in-chief of her land forces; Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Feb. 19, 170⅔; and again in 1710. He was re-appointed Commander-in-chief towards the close of Queen Anne's reign, and took the command of the army in Flanders. There, in obedience to the command of the Queen, he remained in a state of inactivity, notwithstanding the remonstrances of Prince Eugene and the allies. For this, on the accession of George I., he was impeached by the Commons of high treason. Perceiving, from the height to which party spirit was now carried, that he had no chance of an impartial trial, he abandoned his defence and withdrew from the kingdom. An Act for his attainder passed both Houses in 1715; and another Act, in 1721, enabled his brother, the Earl of Arran, to purchase his estates. The close of his life was spent in retirement at Avignon, in France, where he died, Nov. 16, 1745, leaving no issue.

1715. His Royal Highness, George, Prince of Wales, afterwards King George II. Born Nov. 10, 1683. In 1708 he made a campaign as a volunteer in the Netherlands under John, Duke of Marlborough, and had his horse killed under him at the battle of Oudenarde. Vice-Chancellors of the University.

In the Charter of Queen Elizabeth the right of electing the Vice-Chancellor was vested in the Provost and Fellows; but it was usual that the person so chosen should be "confirmed and approved" by the University Senate. In the Charter of Charles I. this regulation was altered: and the Vice-Chancellor is now nominated by the Chancellor of the University. On the death or resignation of the Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor is empowered by the Royal Statute of 1857 to convene the Senate of the University for the election of his successor. The Vice-Chancellor makes a declaration before the Chancellor of the University, or before the Lord Chancellor of Ireland. He may appoint a Pro-Vice-Chancellor to exercise his power, in case of illness or absence.

[a] Archbishop James Ussher, one of the greatest ornaments of the Church in Ireland, distinguished alike for his extraordinary learning, amiability of character, and unswerving integrity, was born in the city of Dublin on the 4th of January, 1580-1. It is remarkable that he was taught to read by two aunts who were blind from their infancy. At the age of eight years he was sent to a school opened by two eminent scholars—James Fullerton and James Hamilton—who were afterwards among the first Fellows of Trinity College. Dr. Bernard states that Ussher was the first Scholar entered into Trinity College, and that he had heard "it was so ordered upon design by the Governors of it, observing the pregnancy and forwardness of him; that it might be a future honour to it to have it upon record, in the frontispiece of their Admission-book, and so accordingly the first graduate, Fellow, Proctor, and all other degrees originally from thence." This statement, however, cannot now be proved: Ussher merely states that he was "inter primos in illam admissos." It does not appear from the College records at what time he was appointed a Fellow of Trinity College. At that period it appears to have been the practice to appoint Masters of Arts Lecturers, who assumed, by degrees, the name and privileges of Fellows. Ussher took the degree of A.M. in the year 1600. In October, 1601, we first find the name of Ussher subscribed to a College document, a consent on the part of the Fellows to the appointment of John Alvey to the Provostship. Having procured, by a special dispensation, the removal of the only impediment to his taking orders, namely, want of canonical age, he was ordained deacon and priest in May, 1602, by his uncle, Henry Archbishop of Armagh. About this time he determined to read through the works of the Fathers; and this prodigious task he executed in eighteen years, commencing in the 20th, and terminating in the 38th year of his age. In the year 1607, shortly after taking the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, he was appointed Professor of Divinity in the University, and continued to deliver lectures during the following fourteen years. In 1613 his first work, entitled "Gravissimæ Quæstionis Historica Explicatio" was published, the object of which was to answer the question of the Romanists, "Where was the religion of the Protestants before Luther?" The work was dedicated to James I., and greatly gratified that monarch. In Jannary, 1620-1, Dr. Montgomery, Bishop of Meath, died, and the King immediately named Dr. Ussher the new Bishop, and often boasted that he was a "Bishop of his own making." In March, 1624-5, on the death of Primate Hampton, James appointed the Bishop of Meath his successor. He was the hundredth Bishop of the See of Armagh from St. Patrick, and continued to occupy it for thirty-one-years. A full account of all his publications is to be found in the very interesting Life of Ussher written by the late Dr. Elrington, and prefixed to a complete edition of his works. The dates of a few are subjoined:—"Answer to a Jesuit," 1624; "Religion of the Ancient Irish," 1631; "Britannicarum Ecclesiarum Antiquitates," 1639; "Polycarpi et Ignatii Epistolæ," 1644; "Annales Veteris Testamenti," 1650.

Archbishop Ussher had the honour of a public funeral in Westminster Abbey, by order of the Protector, Oliver Cromwell. This funeral was the only occasion on which the Liturgical Service of the Church was heard within the Abbey during the Commonwealth.—(Stanley's Westminster Abbey, p. 226.) He was buried in St. Paul's Chapel, next to the grave of Sir James Fullarton, his former College Tutor.—(Parr's Life of Ussher, 1686.) The spot where he is interred is marked by a flat stone, bearing this inscription, "James Ussher, Archbishop of Armagh, 1656." It had been his intention to bequeath his magnificent library, consisting of nearly ten thousand books and manuscripts, to Trinity College, as a token of gratitude to the place where he received his education. After undergoing various casualties, the books were placed in Dublin Castle, where they remained until the accession of Charles II., who presented them to Trinity College, where they now remain.

[b] "In 1612 Ussher took the degree of D.D. at a Grand Commencement held in the Cathedral of St. Patrick, because there was no room sufficiently large in Trinity College."—Elrington's Life of Ussher, p. 43. For a detailed account of this Commencement see Appendix No. II., ib.

[c] See Ware, Writers, p. 341. On a College chalice is this inscription:—"1632, Johs. Richardson, S. T. P. hujus Collegii quondam socius, esse dedit sui monumentum et pignus amoris." See also list of Benefactors under year 1654.

[a] Commons' Journal, vol. i. p. 415. The reason of this is said to have been that certain members of the College refused to give evidence or information of alleged malpractices in the College during Lord Strafford's administration, conceiving themselves prohibited by cap. xi. of the Statutes.—Carte's Ormond, vol. i. pp. 147–8.

[b] Kerdiffe was driven from his living of Desertcreight by the rebels in 1641, and being in great distress and poverty, he, together with James Bishop and William Raymund, supplicated the Marquis of Ormonde, then Chancellor of the University, to be made Senior Fellows, as there was not a sufficient number of Senior Fellows in the College to coopt them statutably. Their request, it appears, was granted. (See Reg. p. 29.)

answer:—That some time must be allowed to deliberate upon the contents of the Letter, inasmuch as the Seniority was full." Veale was, probably, a Junior Fellow at that time, for we find him elected Junior Proctor at the Commencement held Jan. 26, 1660-1, and on the election of Junior Fellows, Jan. 29, only eight instead of nine were elected So that it is probable that, after the Restoration, when Seele was appointed Provost, the Senior Fellows allowed were Hoyle and Williamson (see 1660), and the only remaining allowed Junior Fellow was Veale. See Calamy, Ejected Ministers, vol. ii. p. 57; Wood, Fasti Oxon., Part II., p. 177, Edit. Bliss. He wrote the Notes on Ephes. and Jude, in Poole's Annotations (Calamy, Ejected Ministers, vol. ii pp. 14, 15); and edited Stephen Charnock's book on Divine Providence; Wood, Ath. Oxon. vol. iv. p. 604, Ed. Bliss.

[a] See an account of him in Calamy, Ejected Ministers, vol. ii. p. 810.

[b] See Ware, Writers, p. 345; Calamy (Ejected Ministers, vol. ii. p. 415) asserts Mather to have been a Fellow under the Usurpation, but his name does not appear signed to any College document during that period. He was suspended, and silenced for some sermon in 1666, and died Oct. 26, 1671. (See Ware's Writers, Book II., p. 345.)

[c] An account of him is given by Calamy, Ejected Ministers, vol. ii. p. 134.

[d] Probably the person mentioned by Calamy, vol. ii. p. 57, as having sometimes gone by the name of Chambers.

[e] These two were the only existing Senior Fellows.

[f] In August, 1661, the Duke of Ormond, then Chancellor of the University, sent a letter to the Provost, directing that no person be admitted to a Fellowship that is not conformable, and adding particularly (perhaps with reference to the case of Edward Veale, above), "and in case you shall receive any Mandates, in the behalfe of any person that is not so qualified, I know it to bee his Majesty's intention that they should not be obeyed, and therefore I desire you to suspend the execution thereof untill you shall upon notice given heere farther from mee in that behalfe." It is probable, therefore, that, upon the receipt of this letter, Williamson and Hoyle, both of whom were certainly Nonconformists, resigned; and accordingly their names are not afterwards found on the College books; and Phillips (Aug. 27) and Wilkins (Sept. 10) were coopted Senior Fellows immediately after.

Died November, 22, 1682. Buried in the College Chapel.

[a] These five only were mentioned as Senior Fellows in the King's Letter. In it the Provost and Senior Fellows were empowered, after the admission of the five new Seniors, to proceed to an election of Junior Fellows, requiring them only to elect Dr. Lambert Gougleman as one of them. The King's Letter also dispensed, pro hac vice, with the Statutes, and empowered them to hold the election on any day. It was deferred "by reason of a commencement and other weighty affayres of the Colledge," until Jan. 29, 1660-1, on which day Gougleman, Phipps, &c., were elected Junior Fellows.

"October 21. Several persons, by order of the Government, seized upon the Chapel, and broke open the Library. The Chappel was sprinkled, new consecrated, and Mass said in it; but afterwards, being converted into a storehouse for powder, it escaped all further damage. The Library and Gardens, and y^e Provost's lodgings, were committed to the care of one M'Carthy, a priest, and Chaplain to the King, who preserved them from the violence of the souldiers; but the Chambers and all other things belonging to the College were miserably defaced and ruined.

"June 14, 1690. King William landed at Carrickfergus, and same day Mr. Thewles died of a fever."—See "Brief Memorials of the Case and Conduct of Trinity College," by the Venerable Arthur B. Rowan, D.D., Archdeacon of Ardfert, Dublin, 1858.

[a] An eminent metaphysical writer. Author of "The Procedure, Extent, and Limits of the Human Understanding." "The Divine Analogy." "Answer to Toland's Christianity not Mysterious," "Essay on Drinking of Healths," and other works. He was buried in a chapel near the ancient Palace of the Bishops of Cork, which he himself built in 1730 (see Cotton's Fasti, iii. p. 188), but which is now in a state of ruinous decay. In "Notes and Queries" (Feb. 9, 1861), there is an interesting account of an examination of the burial-place of Bishops Peter Browne and Mann, and of the opening of the coffin of the former; when his black hair and features were found so perfect, that he was immediately recognised from his likeness to his portrait in the Palace, Cork.

[b] Cotton's Fasti, vol. iii. p. 227.

[c] At Wetherby's election James Cooper for good answering was allowed £20 per annum until provided for.

[d] Bishop Forster left an estate, near Raphoe, for the support of clergymen's widows of that diocese.

[e] Dr. Elwood had a license of absence of two years from the Lords Justices. He left by his will £1000 to the College, to be applied in such manner as the Board, with the consent of the Archbishop of Cashel, should determine; and it was resolved in consequence (Feb. 28, 1741) to build a Commons Hall.

[a] Admitted to St. John's College, Oxford, Oct. 31, 1690, and came to Dublin ad eundem, June 15, 1692.

[c] Dr. Raymund was a good Irish scholar, and wrote an Introduction to the History of Ireland. He was among the friends of Swift.

[d] Second son of Ralph Howard, M.D., Regius Professor of Physic, 1674 to 1710, and father of Ralph Howard, created Viscount Wicklow, June 12, 1785. (See Lodge, vol. vi. pp. 89-91.) Mentioned by Swift, "Howard, in spite of the devil, would still be untoward."

[e] This eminent metaphysician and distinguished prelate of the Irish Church was born near Thomastown, in the county of Kilkenny, March 12, 1684, and entered College under Dr. Hall, at the age of 15. After obtaining his Fellowship, he spent a considerable time on the Continent, as appears from various entries in the College Register:—"Nov. 6, 1713, a letter from Her Majesty was read, granting 'to our trusty and well-beloved George Berkeley, one of the Junior Fellows, leave to travel and remain abroad, during the space of two years, for the recovery of his health and his improvement in learning.'"—Coll. Reg. p. 453. This leave of absence was renewed on Nov. 19, 1715; Aug. 17, 1717; May 6, 1719; May 6, 1721. In Sept. 1728, he sailed for Rhode Island, in order to found a Seminary, under the name of St Paul's College, in Bermuda, for converting the savage Americans to Christianity. The College, by its charter, was to consist of a President and nine Fellows, who were obliged to maintain and educate Indian Scholars at the rate of £10 per annum for each. Dr. Berkeley was named President, and the first three Fellows named in the Charter were the Rev. William Thompson, Jonathan Rogers, and James King, all Fellows of Trinity College, and Masters of Arts in the University of Dublin. The Government of the day made various excuses for not supplying the sum of £20,000, voted by the English House of Commons for this purpose. Sir Robert Walpole, the Prime Minister, when pressed on this subject by Dr. Gibson, Bishop of London, made the following reply:—"If you put this question to me as a Minister, I must and can assure you, that the money shall most undoubtedly be paid as soon as suits with public convenience; but if you ask me, as a friend, whether Dean Berkeley should continue in America expecting the payment of £20,000, I advise him by all means to return home to Europe, and abandon his present expectations."

Bishop Berkeley's collected works were published after his death, in two volumes, 4to, London, 1784. The dates of a few of them are subjoined:—"Arithmetica absque Algebra aut Euclide demonstrata" (written before the author was twenty years old), 1707. "Theory of Vision," 1709. Reg.* p. 557.

[d] This arose from a Student having been punished for defending the murder of Charles I., which the Government (then Whigs) conceived to be a proof of the Jacobitism of the College, and therefore inhibited all elections for that year.

[e] Election postponed from June 17 to July 16, on account of resignation of Provost Pratt. William Rowan was dispensed from taking Orders, June 22, 1719. Went to the Bar, and became King's Counsel. [a] Previous to this year, the names of the Scholars elected in any one year were not arranged in order of merit, but in the order of their standing on the College Books (Stat. Cap. 7). This rule was altered by the Statute 18 Victoria. The names are placed in the order of merit at the Examination in this and all the subsequent years.

[b] Previous to the year 1873, Foundation Scholarships in Trinity College were restricted by the Statutes to Members of the Church of Ireland. In Michaelmas Term, 1854, it was resolved by the Board that Students of other religious denominations, whose answering, whether in Science or Classics, was such as would have entitled them to Chartered Scholarships, should be elected Non-Foundation Scholars. By the "University of Dublin Tests Act, 1873." this distinction has been removed; and all Students can now be elected Scholars on the Foundation.
